

FRANCE IMPERILS NAVAL CUT CONFERENCE AS RADICAL CABINET FALLS ON FIRST VOTE

First City Graft Indictments Reported Voted

JURORS TO HOLD BILLS RETURNED UNTIL SATURDAY

Body Reported To Have Considered Between 16 and 20 True Bills at Tuesday Session.

FOREMAN COLLIER DECLINES TO TALK

Inquisitorial Group Preparing for Release to the Public a Detailed History of Probe.

The first of the long expected indictments in the city hall graft and corruption case were reported today by the Fulton grand jury Tuesday, though they were not presented to court and likely will not be until Saturday when the present grand jury will complete its term of office and finish its part in the four-month-old investigation.

The true bills still are in the hands of the grand jury and will not actually become charges against the persons accused until they have been filed in open court. Just how many bills were voted Tuesday could not be learned though it was said that consideration had been given between 16 and 20, some of which were passed over for reconsideration later in the week.

W. Rawson Collier, the grand jury foreman, stated definitely Tuesday that persons seeking information regarding the indictments would have to wait until Saturday before learning anything.

Questioners Put Off.
"See me Saturday," was all the foreman would say when questioned by reporters and others interested in the proceedings.

It also was reported Tuesday that in addition to the indictments and presentments to be returned by the present grand jury on the city hall investigation, that body also is preparing for release to the public a history of the probe, giving all the details of its investigation into every phase of alleged graft and corruption. This it was said, will be in the nature of an open report on all the work accomplished by the grand jury, including that which reported to the court and which was formally returned the same day and other investigations which proved the innocence of persons who from time to time have been linked in the various scandals.

The indictments considered Tuesday all were said to deal with misfeasance and malfeasance of office, setting at rest unofficial reports that there would be a large number of true bills. In the misfeasance and malfeasance indictments, the grand jury is expected to incorporate various minor charges, thereby bringing in what is known as an "omnibus" indictment against several persons who previously had been reported to be facing a long list of indictments.

Routine Business Handled.
In addition to consideration of the indictments, the grand jury also went into its routine business and devoted several hours to further delving into charges of irregularities in municipal affairs Tuesday, with the leasing of the old city hall to the Danier hotel interests reported to be the chief object for study during the day.

Carling Dinkler, head of the hotel interests which leased the city hall site, was among the witnesses examined during the afternoon session. Mr. Dinkler entered the grand jury witness room shortly before 2 o'clock and did not leave until after 3, but it was said that he was before the grand jury only a short time, most of the hour being spent in awaiting his summons to give his testimony.

Alderman Ben T. Huet, of the third ward, whose statement concerning alleged graft on the floor of council was followed by the investigation, and Alderman G. Everett Millican, provisional mayor pro tem, also were among those subpoenaed for appearance during the day, but it could not be learned in what matters the grand jury desired to question them.

Another session of the grand jury is to be held today, beginning at 2 o'clock in the afternoon. It was reported Tuesday night that consideration would be given additional true bills but there was no confirmation of this report.

SNOOK LOSES LAST APPEAL FOR LIFE

U. S. Supreme Court Refuses To Intervene in Professor's Execution.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 25.—(AP)—The supreme court declined today to review the conviction of James Howard Snook for murdering Theodor Hix, and—unless other resources are more successful—the former Ohio State University professor will be executed on Friday night.

Word of the supreme court decision quickly reached his counsel at Columbus, Ohio. They intend to seek a stay of execution from Governor Cooper, of that state, and also to ask the state board of clemency to review the conviction.

The decision of the highest tribunal was announced by Chief Justice Hughes. The order of denial was issued at once and hastened to the Ohio supreme court.

It will close the doors of the courts to Snook unless he can obtain a writ of habeas corpus. Lawyers here, familiar with the practice in the federal courts, predicted today that the federal district court would not entertain habeas corpus proceedings in view of the refusal of the highest court to grant a review of the conviction.

Snook contended that he had been deprived of constitutional rights in his trial because two statements, one of which he claimed had been obtained by brutal third degree methods, and another alleged confession to newspapermen, had been admitted as evidence at the trial. He also asserted that the jury had been intimidated by outbursts from spectators in the courtroom during the trial, that he had been forced to trial when not ready; that he had been tried by a jury to which he had objected.

By suspension of its rules, the supreme court yesterday permitted Snook to file his petition for review, and each justice carefully studied the grounds urged for setting aside the verdict, without finding sufficient substance to warrant a review by the court.

Earthquake Rocks Imperial Valley

CALEXICO, Cal., Feb. 25.—(AP)—The Imperial valley of California and northern section of Lower California in Mexico were shaken by two earthquakes tonight. Neither did any damage.

The first shock at 6:25 o'clock was of sufficient intensity to cause some concern in Calexico, Imperial, El Centro and Brawley, Imperial Valley towns, and in Mexicali, capital of the northern district of Lower California, across the international line from here.

Residents ran into the streets, fearing that the 15-second jolt was the forerunner of a heavier shock. Nothing followed, however, until 7:50 p. m., when a second and much lighter shock was felt.

Appreciation and Regrets

Great appreciation is felt by The Constitution for the response the cooking school being conducted by this paper at Loew's Grand theater drew from the women of Atlanta on the opening day.

Demonstrations Start With House Full—Hundreds Turned Away; Second Session Today.

Every available seat at The Constitution's cooking and homemaking school in Loew's Grand theater was occupied before time for the lecture to start on the opening day.

The school started Tuesday and will continue daily through Friday.

The cooking demonstrations which are being directed by Miss Jessie Marie DeBoth, begin at 10 o'clock and are concluded at noon.

For those anxious to get desirable seats, however, the doors are opened at 9:15, 45 minutes before the demonstrations start, and many took advantage of this on the opening day.

Preceding the cooking lectures, Katrina Van Teleov, a mechanical servant developed by the Westinghouse Electric and Manufacturing Company, is demonstrated. The demonstration is given by Robert E. Morley, a member of the domestic appliance department of the company.

The automaton was brought to Atlanta through the courtesy of the Georgia Power Company, and this is the first public demonstration at which Katrina has been shown.

The demonstration showed the interest of the crowd while waiting for the cooking demonstrations to start. At a whistle from her master, Katrina went through her bag of tricks, even to talking. And when she was told to "shut up," she did.

Between 2,500 and 3,000 persons were accommodated at the school on the opening day. And literally hundreds were turned away. Women were still coming to the door when the demonstrations had been completed.

Firemen and police detailed to the school refused to allow the aisles and lobby to be packed, and they had closed the doors before time for the lecture to start.

The crowd was enthusiastic throughout the lecture and showed a great deal of interest in the modern methods demonstrated by Miss DeBoth. Many of them had notebooks and pencils to take full account.

House of David At Last Admits King Ben Is Dead

BENTON HARBOR, Mich., Feb. 25.—(AP)—"King" Benjamin Purnell, who died three years ago, according to state records, was pronounced dead today by H. T. Dewhirst, successor to Benjamin as temporal manager of the Israelite House of David.

The "king," who taught there would be everlasting life for the Israelites, and whose body has been held in state since his death awaiting resurrection, is gone forever, Dewhirst sadly admitted. With his demise an accepted fact, the lure of immortality has been effected from the teachings of the colony.

Despite the loss of the tenet which was credited with bringing more members to the cult than any other single thing, and in face of internal dissension which has torn the membership and property in two, the organization will attempt to carry on—divided in business affairs but together in adherence to the fundamentals of the Israelite faith.

The so-called official factor, headed by Dewhirst, will continue to operate the Benton Harbor colony, its amusement park and allied enterprises, he said. "Queen" Mary Purnell, former consort of Benjamin, has been allotted valuable farm lands and some colony property in Benton Harbor.

The faith we followed under Benjamin will be continued by all the Israelites. Benjamin was the seventh messenger. There will not be an eighth. Sometime during the period of the seventh messenger and the seven angels 144,000 Israelites will assume immortality. We cannot promise everlasting life to those now in the colony. We do not know when the ingathering will be. We do contend, however, that our vegetarian diet and exemplary lives encourage longevity," Dewhirst said.

AMERICANS AVERT SANGUINARY FIGHT IN SANTO DOMINGO

U. S. Diplomats Effect Temporary Truce as Armies Face Each Other Near Capital.

BY HARRY W. FRANTZ,
United News Staff Correspondent.
SANTO DOMINGO, Dominican Republic, Feb. 25.—The tactful diplomacy of an American career diplomat, Minister Charles B. Curtis, and the risk-taking exploits of John Moore Cabot, young secretary of the United States legation here, were believed tonight to have prevented the possibility of immediate bloodshed in the Dominican republic.

Santo Domingo, the capital, was quiet, government forces and insurrectionists were facing each other in a line about 13 miles from the city but were maintaining a truce pending negotiations. The rebels' army was estimated at from 500 to 1,000, but their strength in the interior was not ascertainable as telegraph service was interrupted.

As the situation gave promise of straightening out, there seemed a smaller possibility of a major involvement of the United States in this new Caribbean crisis. President Horacio Vasquez, who served one term and a two-year extension, had not resigned, but his vice president, Jose Dolores Alfonseca, had announced his resignation. The action requires congressional acceptance.

The two Americans, Curtis and Cabot, got busy yesterday as soon as it was learned the rebels had captured Santiago de los Caballeros and the fortress at Monte Cristi, in the north, and were marching on Santo Domingo.

Curtis, a New York appointed minister last December after 20 years' diplomatic service, had been here only a month, but met the crisis coolly and by night and day labor aided in restoring confidence here. He sent Cabot to Santiago de los Caballeros, center of the revolt, to find out what the insurrectionists wanted with a view to reconciling the factions.

This was an assignment to Cabot's liking. If there was on thing he loved it was motoring—with risks. As he came back to the city, he was using his car to spend his holidays trying to make his car set new Peruvian mountain-climbing records.

En route to his destination in a runabout coupe, he was confronted by the opposing forces, confronting each other, to delay fighting. He then traversed a lonely mountain range, broken only by occasional tobacco.

Shriek, Plus Grocer's Brick, Helps Solve Robbery Series

BY R. E. POWELL.
A shriek that rent the air along Decatur street, plus a perfectly aimed brickbat, Tuesday afternoon helped the police solve one of the many holdups which recently terrorized a group of independent grocers, and it is believed will lead to a solution of a number of other holdups and to arrest of the slayer of Sam Nissen, Fulton street grocer, who died January 12 after being shot by bandits.

Business brought E. Deschovitz, who operates a grocery at 509 Martin street, down to Five Points. More business carried him strolling down Decatur. In the long block west of the station house Deschovitz espied a face that was more than familiar, if none the less, he brought back to him the stinging vision of 805 which departed his keeping without his consent—in fact, wholly against his will.

One of the first pictures Deschovitz ever saw was labeled "Stop Thief." It came back to him in a jiffy, as they once said in the old south. It took him a split second less than a jiffy to cry out the phrase he remembered. Thanks to the prosperity program of street building, a nice, half-size, sharp-cornered brick bat was within reach. It was not only within reach, it seemed to be flying at Deschovitz's head.

Those who saw him aim, and the police afterward confirmed eyewitness accounts, say that Deschovitz had that brick bat under perfect control—Deschovitz himself admitting that he intended not to kill but to halt and halt pronto. When the smoke of battle had cleared away, the prostrate form of O. C. Hendricks, 35-year-old negro, able some time after helped to give detectives his address as 110 West Pine street, was picked up and taken to the infirmary room at headquarters.

There the prisoner admitted that he had robbed Deschovitz twice at the point of a gun, taking $43 from him on the night of December 28 and paying a return call to get $22 January 6. The first time he had two confederates. The second time he carried a third assistant.

Detectives E. I. Hildebrand and E. Retsch believed Tuesday night that Hendricks would name his companions in the holdup enterprise before many more hours.

Grilled by Detectives Hildebrand and Retsch, Hendricks named two other negroes, James Harvey, 22, living on Eleventh street, and Willie Watkins, 20, of 160 Pryor street, as his confederates in the Deschovitz holdup.

PARDON REPORTED FOR BLACKBURN

No Announcement of Action Yet Received at State Prison Farm.

Governor L. G. Hardman Tuesday signed a full pardon for Palmer Blackburn, Atlanta investment banker, who has served 20 months of a three-to-four-year sentence for misappropriation of funds it was reliably reported Tuesday night.

No official announcement of the pardon was made at the office of Governor Hardman. Information from other sources was definite to the effect that the pardon had been signed.

Blackburn's arrest and conviction on two counts of larceny after trust and one count of forgery are said to have resulted from his efforts to save the King-Blackburn company, prominent investment banking firm, with which he was connected.

The losses of the company were attributed to unfortunate investments in Florida, which Blackburn stated that he was fighting for time to adjust. It developed that Blackburn did not profit by the transactions.

Governor Hardman could not be reached at his home Tuesday night for a statement on the reported pardon. John A. Boykin, his secretary, stated that the case, which had been favorably recommended by the state prison commission several months ago, was before the governor Tuesday, but neither he nor Mrs. Mattie Carrington, executive secretary to the governor, were able to confirm report of the pardon.

At the state prison farm no information relative to the pardon had been received. The superintendent in charge Tuesday night, stated that Blackburn had been locked in his cell, as usual, at 9 o'clock.

No information had reached Solicitor General A. B. Boykin, who handled the prosecution of the case. "If a pardon has been granted," Mr. Boykin stated, "it is against my recommendation." Members of the state prison commission were unable to confirm or deny the report.

Dynamite and Fuse Found in Old Carboy

Sixty sticks of dynamite and about 300 feet of fuse, believed to have been stolen from some construction company, were found late Tuesday in an old carboy under the Broad street viaduct. The explosive was turned over to the police and a written delivery it to the city construction department.

County Commission Expected To Elect Him at Special Meeting Today.

Appointment of James M. George, chief marshal of the municipal court of Atlanta, to the post of clerk of Fulton superior court, vacate by the death of Thomas C. Miller, was seen as a strong probability Tuesday.

Reports at the courthouse were that Mr. George has been agreed upon as the successor to Mr. Miller, after a number of conferences. At Dunn, deputy clerk in the civil division of superior court, was informed by the employees under Mr. Miller as their choice for the post, but it is understood, Mr. Dunn has agreed to support Mr. George and to accept the post of chief deputy clerk.

A special meeting of the county commission will be held today for appointment of a clerk to hold the office until an election to be held by the county assembly is held.

Mr. George has been with the office of the marshal of municipal court since the court's organization 16 years ago. For two years he served as a deputy marshal and then for two more years as chief clerk to the marshal. He has served as chief marshal for 12 years, and on January 1 began a new four-year term.

Prior to his connection with the marshal's office Mr. George was with Carlos Mason in the furniture business for 12 years. He was born and reared in Clayton county, near the Fulton county line.

Probably that A. C. "Boy" Minihett, former solicitor of the criminal court of Atlanta, will make the race to succeed Mr. Miller loomed Tuesday following imposition of a number of friends, Tuesday night he declined to announce definitely for the post.

"I will give the matter my careful consideration and answer later," he said.

He is one of the best-known young attorneys in Atlanta, being connected with the legal firm of Hill & Minihett.

Names of Atlanta District-Attorney and Savannah Customs Official Sent to Senate by Hoover

BY FRANCIS W. CLARKE.
WASHINGTON, Feb. 25.—Nominations for additional four-year terms for Clint W. Hager, federal district attorney at Atlanta, and M. O. Dunning, collector of customs at Savannah, were sent to the senate today by the president, as was exclusively predicted in Tuesday morning's Constitution.

The nomination of Hager was referred to the senate judiciary committee and that of Dunning to the senate finance committee, and it is believed that they will be favorably reported out in a few days, when the senate will immediately confirm the nominations.

As told in The Constitution's dispatch from Washington published yesterday, the immediate reappointment of both Hager and Dunning was decided upon at a conference held Monday morning at the White House between Postmaster-General Walter F. Brown, Walter H. Newton, the president's political secretary; Josiah T. Rose, collector of internal revenue; and Newton form the president's unofficial advisory committee on southern affairs, while Rose is active head of the Georgia patronage committee.

Efforts to secure any information from the same high source that The Constitution secured its information Monday on the early reappointment of Hager and Dunning, as to what disposition would be made in the case of other federal officials whose terms expire before the end of the year, were without success today. No comment of any kind would be made as to whether nominations for reappointment of Louis Crawford, United States marshal at Atlanta; George M. McLean, United States marshal for the southern district, and the considerable number of postmasters whose terms expire would be sent to the senate.

In view of the widely published reports that efforts were being made in Georgia to control the forthcoming republican state convention by withholding all nominations until after the convention is held, rumors were rife in Washington today as to just

GEORGE SLATED FOR CLERKSHIP

County Commission Expected To Elect Him at Special Meeting Today.

He is one of the best-known young attorneys in Atlanta, being connected with the legal firm of Hill & Minihett.

W. T. Winn, prominent for many years in civic affairs and through his interest in all movements for good roads, Tuesday also was urged by a number of his friends to enter the race for the post. He declared he would give them an answer today.

FUND OF $38,000 FOR FIRE STATION AND BRIDGE ASKED

Fulton County Commission, at Special Meeting Today, Expected To Authorize Expenditures.

Fulton county commissioners, at a special meeting today, are expected to vote $38,000 to provide for establishment of a fire station in the northern section of the county and to make reconstruction of the southern span of the Forsyth street viaduct possible.

This announcement was made Tuesday night by Dr. W. L. Gilbert, chairman of the commission, who declared that he would call a special session of the commission some time today.

He could not set the time for the meeting pending return to Atlanta of Commissioner Paul S. Etheridge, who has been away for the past several days.

A total of $68,000 will be set up for erection of the fire station, equipping it and providing a force of 10 men to handle the apparatus.

Councilman William E. Saunders, chairman of the Atlanta board of firemasters, announced Tuesday that he would ask the board to discontinue service outside the limits of the borough of Atlanta unless the county takes steps by the meeting of the board at 7:30 o'clock tonight to carry out a tacit agreement a majority of the commissioners made with fire board members several weeks ago.

To Provide $30,000.
Another $30,000 is to be provided by the county to match a similar sum already voted by the borough to make reconstruction of the Forsyth street viaduct possible.

The commission today also is expected to confirm the selection of Jim George as clerk of the Fulton county superior court pending a special election to be called in the near future by the ordinary to elect a successor to the late Tom Miller.

Borough construction department officials have completed plans for the southern span of the bridge and will ask bids on the work immediately, it was learned Tuesday. The contract will be let just as soon as Fulton county provides the money.

Request Is Denied.
Alexander MacDougald, president of the MacDougald Construction Company, holders of the contract to rebuild the northern section, asked permission to close that portion of the bridge.

Major I. N. Ragdale declined, however, pending action of the county in voting the $30,000 for the southern span.

The N. C. & St. L. railway is rebuilding the northern section to conform with the plan of the new Union station now under construction. When the plaza and the connections are made with the Spring and Forsyth street bridges convenient means of ingress and egress from either of the structures will be offered to vehicles and pedestrians to the station.

Mr. MacDougald's company has the contract for the plaza as well as the northern sections of the Forsyth street bridge.

Hobo Author's Wife Is Granted Divorce

LAS VEGAS, N. M., Feb. 25.—(AP)—Twenty years after her husband, Margaret Tully, wife of the famed "hobo author," Jim Tully, of Hollywood, Cal., had filed suit for divorce here, a decree was granted to her late today on grounds of extreme cruelty.

Mrs. Tully's request for restoration of her maiden name, Margaret Tully, was granted. She asked neither alimony nor court costs. She told the court her husband's "temperament was too much to bear." They were married in Los Angeles in January, 1925. Twice before, she said she began divorce actions in New York city, but withdrew them at her husband's pleadings. She has resided here since last November 20.

Tully did not contest the action.

RADICAL LEADER LOSES POSITION IN INITIAL VOTE

TARDIEU FAVORED FOR CALL TO POST

Recently Unseated Premier Believed Likely To Succeed Socialist in Power.

PARIS, Feb. 25.—(AP)—France's new left-wing government went down to defeat today at its first appearance before the chamber of deputies amid a bitter attack from the opposition.

Premier Camille Chautemps, despite his pleas that it was important for France to send a delegation quickly to the London naval conference, was beaten on the crucial vote of confidence by a margin of 12 votes, 289 to 277.

For the third time in the history of the third republic, the chamber refused to give an incoming ministry a chance. After cheering former Premier Tardieu on his entrance, the deputies taunted M. Chautemps for having caused the downfall of his predecessor in order to "give the radical-socialist party a chance to get governmental portfolio."

The general opinion in Paris tonight was that Andre Tardieu or Aristide Briand would be called by President Doumergue to form a new government.

Mr. Briand, however, already has made known his disinclination to accept the premiership in any government, and the lobby is expected to elect a ministry of foreign affairs.

Former Premier Tardieu therefore appears to have an excellent chance of going back as premier before the chamber that defeated him by five votes a week ago.

The voting took place amid great excitement both inside and outside the Palais-Bourbon where the chamber sits.

The balloting was carefully checked for nearly an hour, while the chamber and the lobby seethed with excitement. Until the last minute many deputies hoped the official recount would give Premier Chautemps enough votes to keep his post.

Mr. Chautemps told waiting newspapermen, "I am leaving with rancor and bitterness toward none. I have seen grouped around me in a democratic fervor that promises victory in the near future of the best

MASTER MINDS SOUGHT IN KIDNAPING STORY

ductions.

ST. LOUIS, Feb. 25.—(P)—Officers of two states today searched for the master minds of a daring kidnaping ring which abducted Charles W. Pershall, wealthy Granite City, Ill., chain grocer and banker, within two blocks of his home last week, held him captive two days and released him on payment of a sum reported to be $40,000.

It was the second gang playing the ransom racket as a means of livelihood to be uncovered here within a week, the other, described by police as the "gas house mob," being broken up through 12 arrests which followed a raid on a St. Louis county resort and the rescue of Jacob Hoffman, a bookmaker, from his underground "home."

Three others, all bookmakers and gamblers, have been kidnapped since January and their donation for personal freedom was said to have totaled $73,000.

Pershall's release was engineered by George O. Blockburger, Granite City bondsman and real estate agent, who declared he was an unwilling go-between. First denying any knowledge of the ransom racket, Blockburger finally confessed to Chief of Detectives Maier he had paid $40,000, raised by members of Pershall's family, for the banker's freedom. Pershall was said to have been blindfolded, through the placing of cotton over his eyes and held in place by adhesive tape, during the 48 hours he was held prisoner.

Kaiser declared members of the second outlaw group, whom he described as hangers-on of Madison county (Ill.) gambling resorts, are brainier and more daring than the "gas house mob."

"This is a real mob," Kaiser said. "The others were just a bunch of punks trying to steal this gang's thunder."

der. This gang, I am convinced, kidnaped 'Mulepole' Fritz in January. Fritz was the first of the gamblers to be held for ransom. He was reported to have cleaned out a dice game in East St. Louis a few days before he was abducted and police believe his friends paid upwards of $40,000 for his freedom.

STRIKE THREATENED TO SECURE DEMAND

ELIZABETHTON, Tenn., Feb. 25.—(P)—J. C. Donnelly, textile union president, announced today that he had notified officials of the Glanzstoff and Bernberg rayon plant here of the union's intention to call another strike unless the mills reinstate employees who the union says were dismissed because of activities in connection with walkouts last year.

It was indicated that the mill executives would ignore the notice. Donnelly said a strike call was authorized last fall by union members, about the time that plant employees voted, in a poll conducted by the mills, to remain at work. At that time a similar demand for reinstatement was made and was ignored.

Oil Firm Executive Plunges to Death

NEW YORK, Feb. 25.—(P)—Richard H. Jones, a director of Tidewater Oil Corporation of New Jersey, was killed today from a fall from his eighth-floor apartment on Park avenue. Police listed the case as a suicide, and said Jones jumped to his death after striking his wife on the head with an electric lamp.

Employees of the apartment house heard the body strike the courtyard and called the police. An ambulance surgeon was called and pronounced Jones dead. The surgeon attended Mrs. Jones for lacerations for the scalp and she remained in her apartment.

Mr. Jones, who was 35 years old, was graduated from the United States Naval academy at Annapolis, Md., in 1916 and was a member of the Army and Navy Club, Washington, and the Engineers' Club. Mrs. Jones is the former Louise H. Conkey.

Green Says Labor Must Unionize To Live

GREENSBORO, N. C., Feb. 25.—(P)—William Green, president of the American Federation of Labor here to fill a speaking engagement, said today that "the textile industry has been made cheap and they want to keep it cheap."

"The solution is simple," he said. "The workers must organize." The labor chief admitted that "the economic conditions might not be favorable to a wage raise in all instances at this time," but said that night work should be abolished, hours reduced and "especially the conditions that affect women and children could be improved."

President Green denied what he said was the cry of manufacturers in this section that cotton mills in southern Georgia and Alabama are paying lower wages and therefore are producing the same material at lower cost.

Strong Odor Betrays Huge Chicago Still

CHICAGO, Feb. 25.—(P)—Quite by accident a huge still and seven 10,000-gallon vats filled with mash were found last night in South Michigan avenue, half a block from prohibition headquarters and on the edge of the Loop district.

The distillers had disposed of their cooked-out mash down a sewer. Heavy rains and melting snows had caused the sewer to back up. The odor of fermented grain filled the air so that guests of the Stevens hotel and persons as far south as the Illinois Central station noticed it. Federal agents finally traced the odor to a large garage.

Fires were still burning, the stills were deserted. The value of the whiskey making equipment was estimated at $50,000.

Chicago Is Staging Financial Comeback

MIAMI BEACH, Fla., Feb. 25.—(P)—"Chicago is slowly but surely working out its own salvation financially and will pay 100 cents on the dollar on all revenue anticipatory notes issued," Governor Louis L. Emerson, of Illinois, said upon his arrival here today for an indefinite vacation.

"Troubles of Chicago and Illinois are magnified," Governor Emerson said. "We have difficulties, it is true, but they will be worked out gradually and efficiently. The main difficulty in Chicago is the fact that a reassessment of property values was ordered and tax collections are delayed pending the completion of this move."

The governor plans to spend his time fishing, swimming and golfing while here, he said today, with a brief visit to Havana early in March.

$23,000 Bracelet Misaid, Not Stolen

NEW ORLEANS, Feb. 25.—(P)—City police and private detectives searched earlier tonight after being informed by Mrs. Frances Kitchen, visitor from Chicago, that a $23,000 bracelet which early today she thought had been stolen had only been mislaid.

Mrs. Kitchen said the bracelet had slipped off her arm while visiting at the home of a friend. She had previously told police that someone had entered her room at a local hotel and stolen it.

GRANDMOTHER FOUND GUILTY IN BOY'S DEATH

CHARLOTTE, N. C., Feb. 25.—(P)—A coroner's jury today found that Beverly Payne, 5, came to his death last Friday "by strangulation at the hands of Mrs. Sarah O. Ashe, who at the time was insane."

Coroner Frank Hovis announced at the conclusion of the inquest that immediate steps would be taken to get the 67-year-old woman in an institution for the criminally insane.

The boy was killed at the home of Dr. John R. Ashe, Charlotte specialist, son-in-law of Mrs. Sarah O. Ashe. A servant discovered the boy dead and Mrs. Ashe in an unconscious condition, a towel knotted around her neck.

Testifying before the coroner's jury, Dr. Oren Moore, the woman's physician, said she now is "violently insane."

Four Men Killed In Mine Explosion

POTTSVILLE, Pa., Feb. 25.—(P)—Four men were killed and three injured late today in an explosion at the Lytle mine of the Lytle Coal Company, near here. Seven members of the first rescue squad to enter the mine were overcome by afterdamp. Other volunteers rescued them.

A pocket of gas became ignited in a manner yet undetermined and the explosion tore through a section of the sixth level, about a mile from the mouth of the mine. The force of the explosion disrupted the mine's electric power lines, and the fans stopped. As the first rescuers entered the mine the afterdamp swept up on them. Some fell and others attempted to crawl from the mine. Members of a second rescue squad carried them out. None was seriously affected.

Fraternities Disband Pan-Hellenic Board

DENVER, Col., Feb. 25.—(P)—Delegates to the National Pan-Hellenic Congress today voted to disband their organization and form a new one after they became hopelessly involved in parliamentary rules over a proposal to adopt a new constitution which might make it possible to admit Roman Catholic, Masonic and Jewish sororities to membership.

The present constitution makes it necessary for a sorority to receive unanimous approval before it may become a member of the national organization. It is understood the new constitution will provide for a seven-eighths vote of all members in order to take in additional sororities.

DIXIE MASONIC LEADER DIES AT LITTLE ROCK

Charles Rosenbaum Taken by Death at Arkansas Home.

LITTLE ROCK, Ark., Feb. 25.—(AP)—Death early today ended the long career of Charles E. Rosenbaum, who through almost 50 years of service to the Masonic order rose to the second highest position in the southern jurisdiction of Scottish Rite Free Masonry. He was lieutenant grand commander of that body.

Mr. Rosenbaum, who was 73 years old, died at 1:15 a. m. today at his home here. He suffered a heart attack several days ago upon his return from Washington, where he and other members of the supreme council conferred the thirty-third degree of Masonry upon General John J. Pershing and a number of other prominent men.

Becoming affiliated with the Masonic order at an early age, Mr. Rosenbaum held many offices in the organization and was widely known for his work. He was active in both the Knight Templar and Scottish Rite bodies.

Through lesser offices he rose in 1902 to grand commander of the Knights Templars in Arkansas. He was elected a member of the supreme council of Scottish Rite—the mother supreme council of the world—in October, 1901, and in 1914 was elected lieutenant grand commander of the council, an office he held until his death.

In 1911 he was appointed a member of the constitution committee which superintended the building of the Scottish Rite temple in Washington, one of the finest Masonic buildings in the world. He also was active in furthering construction of Masonic buildings in Arkansas, and was in charge of the erecting of the Albert Pike Memorial temple here, one of the finest structures of its kind in the south.

Born in St. Louis, Mr. Rosenbaum received his education there and engaged in business until 1883, when he came to Little Rock. He organized the C. E. Rosenbaum Machinery Company and was active in its management until his recent illness. He was widely known in the south and middle west among businessmen as well as members of the Masonic fraternity.

Mr. Rosenbaum married Miss Ida M. Haylin, of St. Louis, in 1877. One daughter, Mrs. G. W. Harris, of Washington, and Mrs. Rosenbaum, survive him.

Tailors Devise Anti-Plus Fours, New Golf Pants

NEW YORK, Feb. 25.—(UN)—After ten years of trying to figure out something that a man could wear on a golf course and feel sporty in, and at the same time something which would not be plus fours, the 500 tailors composing the New York Custom Cutters' Club cried "Eureka!" today.

The new invention was given to the world at their annual style show. It has not even been named, but there it was and the tailors have great faith in it, partly because they have never liked plus fours anyhow and partly because it is a very gentlemanly-appearing garment.

Before the anti-plus fours were unveiled it was explained that they have a number of advantages over the knickerbockers which now deface the expensive landscape of the better country clubs, and also advantages over the Australian shorts, which one faction of tailors hoped would put plus fours out of business a couple of years ago.

The main disadvantage of the shorts was that nobody would wear them except a few egotists thick-skinned enough to endure the jibes of the locker rooms, and a secondary disadvantage was that the masculine knees, exposed by the shorts, turned out only in rare instances to be something to go home and dream about.

The whole campaign to popularize shorts, therefore, collapsed almost unnoticed. What was worse, the number of plus fours increased. These plus fours invariably sagged at the seat and bugged at the knee and also offered an irresistible temptation to a good many golfers to affix tassels to the calves of their legs.

These tassels caused tailors more pain than the public has ever suspected. "We—that is many of us, you know—always advised against the tassels," one of the custom cutters told the United News. "But often it was no use. When a gentleman had his heart set on tassels with his plus fours, the best thing to do with just to give in gracefully, or you might be deprived of his trade. I never understood it, but there was no getting around a man that wanted tassels."

One of the good points about the anti-plus fours is that no suitable place exists for exposing tassels. The new garment, launched with such high hopes, is really but a very loose pair of pants cut off just below the knee. There it merely comes to an end—no tucks or buckles or machinery. And no place to tack on tassels, unless a man wants to look like a Hungarian peasant on his way to a subscription mazarin.

The fact that the anti-plus fours end so suddenly and simply allows free entry for any vagrant breezes. It was pointed out that another drawback of plus fours is that their ventilation facilities are practically nil. Aside from driving the plus fours into limbo, the tailors have set themselves only one other major task. That is to persuade their customers to wear green business suits. Two such suits, one of a subdued forest green and another of a shade that would arouse envy in a bull frog, attracted gaping admiration and much discussion at the style show.

Kentucky Accepts DuPont Park Offer

FRANKFORT, Ky., Feb. 25.—(AP)—The Kentucky senate today passed the bill previously approved by the house accepting T. Coleman Du Pont's offer to purchase the site of Cumberland Falls and present it to the state for a park. Both branches of the legislature in joint session heard former Governor Harry F. Byrd, of Virginia, and the house went into its first night session.

The senate vote on the Falls was 21 to 16, with party lines split. The house had passed the Du Pont bill 63 to 30, and though a veto by Governor Flem D. Sampson, who favors the small park of a power development and a park, is expected, the Du Pont advocates expect to override the veto.

Both branches passed a companion bill giving the state park commission power to condemn the land at the falls, an option on which is owned by the Cumberland Falls Hydro-Electric Company, an Insull subsidiary.

Queen of Sweden Feared Near Death

ROME, Feb. 25.—(AP)—Queen Victoria, of Sweden, seriously ill for some time at the royal villa here, tonight has making a brave fight for life, but her doctors said her condition was "grave and disquieting."

The presence of King Gustave and other members of her family here beside seems to have given her a new courage. A medical bulletin issued late tonight, however, reported no real physical improvement.

Dr. Axel Munthe, the queen's physician, is watching her constantly. Stockholm is being kept regularly informed about her health, and no news will be given out here until the Swedish capital has had it.

Chicago Paper Claims Wholesale Tax Graft

CHICAGO, Feb. 25.—(AP)—Today's Herald and Examiner said an investigation made by the state's attorney's office had disclosed a tax-fixing ring involving "prominent" high-ups, whose operations have netted several millions of dollars in fraudulent tax cuts.

The grand jury has been summoned to hear the evidence today, the newspaper said.

The inquiry followed reported irregularities which auditors employed by William H. Malone, chairman of the state tax commission, found in the reassessment figures.

An employee of both the board of review and board of assessors was taken into custody last Saturday, the newspaper said, and had revealed widespread tax cuts.

Police Watch Loser On Races Kill Self

NEW ORLEANS, Feb. 25.—(AP)—Daring two police officers looking on to interfere with his plan to commit suicide, Gustav Mantes, Buffalo, N. Y., who lost $3,500 on race horses, today determinedly placed a pistol to his head and fired.

The man killed himself in his room at a small hotel here. He had been in the city less than a week and through heavy losses his money had dwindled to $11.15. This he offered to his landlady, Mrs. Marie Flebbe, to purchase a pair of stockings, but the woman refused the money and pleaded with him not to kill himself.

Mrs. Flebbe summoned two policemen who went to the room and sought to persuade Mantes not to shoot himself.

The brooding man defied the officers to enter, telling them that they could not help him.

He then pulled the trigger. His body was carried to the morgue.

New Mexican Solon Wants No Digging

WASHINGTON, Feb. 25.—(AP)—Representative Simms, republican, New Mexico's lone representative, wants no searchers for buried treasure digging in his district.

In no uncertain terms, he let this be known today in a report to the house public lands committee on the Romjue buried treasure bill which the committee had reported favorably, subject to Simms' approval.

The bill was to permit J. B. Wolford, secretary to Representative H. B. Steagall, democrat, Alabama, "to explore and excavate for buried treasure alleged to be in the Granquenera national park."

ALL-BRAN RELIEVES
COMMON AILMENT

Millions Already Know Its Effectiveness

One of the most common ailments in the world is constipation. It is also one of the most dangerous diseases known to mankind. It is the source of many complaints which strip life of its pleasure.

Many people have constipation in a milder form and do not know it. Perhaps they are suffering with headaches, backaches, indigestion, bad breath, and general physical depression. These are often symptoms.

Kellogg's ALL-BRAN is positively guaranteed to relieve both temporary and recurring constipation or money will be refunded.

The most frequent cause of constipation is lack of roughage in food. Modern, soft foods seldom contain enough.

Kellogg's ALL-BRAN contains roughage. It is the original ALL-BRAN, introduced by Kellogg for relieving millions of people from the scourge of constipation and slowness to the bowels.

Kellogg's ALL-BRAN is delicious with milk or cream. Over cereals and fruits. In soups. In cooked foods. Your grocer has ALL-BRAN in the red-and-green package. Made by Kellogg in Battle Creek.

Your Cooking Is as Uncertain in a Range Without Garland Heat Control as the Destiny of a Ship Without a Compass--- If Your Baking Is Like the Weather---GOOD---FAIR---POOR

It is because the temperature in your oven is not stabilized by mechanical control.

For without mechanical control the success of your baking is wholly dependent upon the manner in which the oven responds to your watchful adjusting and maneuvering of the burner valve, which at best is only a gamble.

Of course, your range will bake at temperatures ranging from 212 to 512 degrees but in that variation of 300 degrees there is only one point where it will bake best.

Suppose an experienced sailor was to start for Paris with only general directions as his guide. He might land anywhere between London and Venice but he has learned that he can reach any definite point of unlimited distance by the use of modern instruments, just as you can always reach that certain required oven temperature that effects rich brown and delicious savor to your cooking by the use of an accurate mechanical instrument on your Garland range.

That indispensable instrument is the Garland Oven Heat Control that will guide your baking to success without mishaps, failure or disappointments in your cooking.

1. That Its Oven Is Balanced Like a Ship's Keel.
2. Synchronized to Every Pulse of the Gas Pressure.
3. That Its Automatic Control of the Heat Is Unfaltering.
4. That Your Cooking Responsibility Ceases When You Place Your Meal in Its Spacious Oven.

Statehouse Pigeon Is Slain by Hawk

The hawk which has been seen in the vicinity of the Candler building and downtown Atlanta has found the grounds of the state capitol attractive. The feathers of a pigeon found on the roof of the capitol building Tuesday gave mute testimony of the bird's activity near the statehouse. Janitors at the state capitol were thrown into a state of excitement by the discovery, but ambitions to terminate the career of the marauder were suppressed by officials, who felt that the capitol grounds was not the best place to demonstrate talent with a shotgun.

LOCAL MASONIC CLUB WILL GATHER TODAY

Operation Total Within Margin of 5 Per Cent Allowed.

The cost of operation of the motor vehicle department of the office of the secretary of state in 1929 was $164,937.66, substantially within the 5 per cent margin allowed for costs from the department's income of $4,563,935.65, an audit released Tuesday by Tom Wisdom, state auditor, revealed.

The cost of operation included the cost of 1929 tags purchased and the manufacture of the 1930 tags in the state's factory at the prison farm. The 1930 tags, it was shown, cost $20,576.88, of which $15,369 was for steel, $3,877 for enamel and paint, and $1,330 for packing.

Another item included in the expenditures was $15,889.11, one-half the purchase price of machinery with which the tags were manufactured.

Salaries were $92,000, $12,800 was paid out in refunded fees, and $24,000 spent for postage.

Not receipts of the commissioner of corporations, a division of the secretary of state's office, were $6,790; and of the secretary of state were $1,261.85.

Of the motor vehicle registration fees $1,270,038.28 was received from persons who came to the offices of the department in the state capitol, and $4,302,044.47 from mail orders.

Motor vehicle fees were divided among various classes of vehicles, as follows:

Class of vehicle	No. of vehicles
Passenger	311,362
Trucks	1,168
Trailers	2,597
Tractors	377
Motorcycles	1,138
Side Cars	170
Dealers' Cars	1,911

There were 11,563 transfers of ownership, 2,308 duplicate tags issued, and 2,973 chauffeurs' fees received.

Song and story eulogize the ant and the bee for their industry and hold them up as criterions for the more slothful of the genus homo.

Georgia state entomologists, however, while permitting the bee his accolade, have dubbed the ant the "pirate of the pantry" and a bane to the human race.

At the same time, they advocate utilizing the handwork of the bee for the undoing of the ant.

Honey, carrying a generous quantity of sodium arsenite (not arsenate), is what turns the ant. This particular arsenic formula is described by the entomologists as the ant's deadliest enemy. Honey, on the other hand, is the ant's gastronomic affinity, far more of an attraction than syrup or other sweets.

While it is considered advisable to get explicit instructions for individual cases from the state board of entomology, Atlanta, experts of the department said the following formula is generally the best to be used, provided it is accurately mixed and used:

Granulated sugar, 9 pounds; water, 9 pints; tartaric acid (crystallized), 6 grams; benzoate of soda, 8.4 grams.

The above ingredients should be boiled slowly for 30 minutes and allowed to cool.

Dissolve 15 grams of sodium arsenite (C. P.) in a half pint of hot water. Cool, add poison to syrup and stir well.

Add to the poisoned syrup one and a quarter pounds of honey and mix thoroughly.

Cans or paraffin bags, containing quantities of the mixture, should be put up on trees outside the infested house.

Gas Tax Receipts Aggregate $1,037,783

With gasoline tax receipts for the month of January aggregating $1,037,783.53, revenues from the tax were in excess of a million-dollar mark for the fourth consecutive month, it was announced Tuesday by William B. Harrison, comptroller general.

"If the same ratio of increase in the gasoline tax is maintained through October, the year's total should run in excess of $15,000,000," Mr. Harrison said. Collections last year, under a 4 instead of a 6-cent gasoline tax, were approximately $9,000,000.

A $20,993.49 collection from the tax on kerosene brought the grand total of fuel oil tax collections to $1,058,777.02.

The receipts for December of 1929, $1,128,051, were slightly larger than those for January.

Governor and Six Mayors To Attend Ball, March 11

Every one of the half dozen mayors of incorporated communities in Greater Atlanta will attend the great ball in their honor to be staged March 11 at the Shrine mosque. It was announced Tuesday by Mrs. Chester Johnson, former president of the West End Woman's Club.

The club is sponsoring the affair as a benefit for the children's ward at Alto tubercular sanitarium, and all proceeds will go to that charity.

Governor L. G. Hardman already has obtained tickets for the affair, which also will be in the nature of an official welcome into Atlanta of all that territory taken into the greater city by an act of the Georgia legislature last summer.

Mayor I. N. Ragsdale was formally invited to attend the ball several days ago. Other mayors who declared they would be present and participate in the affair are Scott Candler, of Decatur; J. A. Ragsdale, East Point; E. D. Barrett, College Park;

W. A. Landers, Hapeville, and C. R. Pyburn, Avondale.

Special entertainment features will mark the event as one of the outstanding of its kind held in Atlanta in months, according to sponsors.

Mayor Ragsdale, Atlanta, has issued a statement calling on citizens generally and officials in particular to support it as a worthy charity.

SCHOOL FACULTY QUILTS FOR LACK OF SUPPORT

Superintendent Threatened by Father of Disciplined Girl Says Authorities Lax.

WEST HELENA, Ark., Feb. 25. (AP)—The entire faculty of 19 members and Superintendent George Cromwell, of West Helena High school, resigned today in protest to what they said was a lack of definite action by authorities in regard to threats made against Cromwell by Lawrence Brown, father of two girls who were disciplined by the superintendent for quarreling with another girl.

Superintendent Cromwell's resignation today was his second in two days. He resigned yesterday because he said he had been threatened by Brown, and armed deputy sheriffs patrolled the streets last night after mass meetings by citizens who protested Cromwell's resignation. The deputies also stood guard outside the school today to keep order.

The action of Cromwell and members of the faculty today left this city of several thousand population without a school for white children.

The faculty and Cromwell at a meeting after school hours today drew up a resolution which was transmitted to the school board. In it they protested against what they said was lack of action by authorities in protecting the superintendent against alleged threats by Brown. The latter was reported to have threatened Cromwell's life unless he disciplined the third girl in the quarrel. Brown's two daughters were sent home after the quarrel, but the other child was not disciplined.

Sheriff J. C. Barlow and a number of his deputies stood guard outside the school today.

Official Resigns.

AUSTIN, Texas, Feb. 25. (AP)—State Comptroller S. H. Terrell resigned today in the midst of a hearing by the house of representatives on impeachment charges against him, alleging irregularities in office involving $6,000. The resignation brought the hearing to an end and it was indicated the house would take no further action.

Light Showers On Tap Today, Forecast Says

A slight interruption in Atlanta's "spring weather" schedule is on tap for today with showers and a mild temperature drop, following a near break in February's maximum temperature record Tuesday afternoon when the mercury climbed to an even 77 degrees, according to the official forecast of C. E. von Hermann, local meteorologist. The day's minimum was 58.

A disturbance is moving in this direction from the Gulf region, the bureau chief states, and probably will cause a shower or so by nightfall. This is to be followed by a brief chilly spell tonight and Thursday when the mercury will return to more seasonable levels. Nothing in the nature of a freeze is expected, however. Estimated temperature extremes today are 55 and approximately 70.

Passenger Plane Is Still Missing

LOS ANGELES, Feb. 25. (AP)—Western Air Express officials tonight revealed that three men—pilot, copilot and steward—are missing with the Western Air Express transport plane that disappeared Sunday while en route from Kingman, Ariz., to the terminal at Alhambra, Cal.

The presence of the third man aboard, John W. Slaton, steward, had not hitherto been known. He was a new employe, Western Air Express officials said, and his name had not been entered in the records of the general office.

When he failed to report at the field today, however, a check-up of the personnel showed that he had gone to Kingman Saturday with Pilot James A. Dole, and Co-Pilot A. W. Bieber in the chartered plane which carried special passengers to Arizona. The plane was returning without passengers, when it disappeared during a sudden storm.

Twelve searching planes, three of them army ships from March field, California, government Air base, searched the territory between Kingman and Los Angeles today, swooping also over the Mojave desert, without result. Three Western Air Express planes took off from Kingman and six from Alhambra terminal. They all returned to their bases tonight.

Price Stabilization For Wheat Urged

DES MOINES, Feb. 25. (AP)—Suggestion that the federal farm board take immediate steps to stabilize the wheat market was offered in a resolution passed by the Corn Belt Federation of Farm Organizations' meeting last night.

Representatives of 20 agricultural organizations in nine states passed the resolution without a dissenting vote. Resolutions further suggested that the federal farm board establish a national sales agency for each commodity dealt in, rather than designate a particular co-operative agency already established.

Confidence in the federal farm board was also expressed in the resolutions and the corn belt body pledged its continued support of the board, adding the hope that "the farm board will not stop short in bringing about equality for agriculture which was pledged to the farmers of the nation during the last presidential election."

Gastonia Murder Trial Hears Communist Issue

CHARLOTTE, N. C., Feb. 25. (AP)—The communism issue was handled about in the courtroom today at the trial of five Gastonia Textile Workers for second-degree murder of Miss Ella May Wiggins, member of an allegedly communistic textile labor union.

Mrs. Wiggins, a Bessemer City widow, mother of several small children, was shot to death as she and a score of other textile workers attempted to attend a scheduled labor meeting, reputedly communistic. Troy Jones, Horace Wheelus, O. H. Lunsford, Lowery Davis and Fred Morrow are on trial in Mecklenburg county

First Lady Poses With 'Rudy' Vallee

WASHINGTON, Feb. 25. (AP)—Autographs were freely exchanged at the breakfast given in honor of Mrs.

Herbert Hoover today by the Congressional Club.

Between courses of filet mignon, French pastries and fancy ice creams and salads, daughters of congressmen sneaked out to the balcony of the Pan-American building, where Rudy Vallee and his orchestra were eating, and obtained autographs from the crooner of love songs.

It was an informal affair. Mrs. Hoover entered wholeheartedly into it, and at its conclusion congratulated Vallee and posed with him and Mrs. Porter Dale, president of the club, before a battery of cameramen.

She arrived promptly at 12 and chatted animatedly throughout the breakfast with Mrs. Dale and Mrs. Ray Lyman Wilbur, wife of the secretary of the interior, who were seated on either side of her. She wore a green and black flowered chiffon velvet dress and small black hat.

Vallee and his orchestra came from New York to furnish music for the affair, and before journeying to the Pan-American building the orchestra leader went to the White House, where he was presented to President Hoover.

Augusta's Gas Rate Cut by Commission

Gas rates for the city of Augusta, served by the Georgia Public Utilities Company, were cut substantially by the Georgia public service commission in an order given Tuesday establishing a new schedule of rates.

The new rate is $1.40 net for each of the first 2,000 cubic feet of gas; $1.20 net for each of the next three thousand, and $1 for each thousand cubic feet in excess of five. There will be a service charge of $1 per month.

The old rate was $1.85 per 1,000 feet up to 10,000. There was a minimum charge of $1 per month.

The case was instituted by the public service commission on its own motion.

Capital Has Record High Temperature

WASHINGTON, Feb. 25.—(AP)—The hottest February day in the history of the weather bureau brought a heat prostration today and sent the mercury soaring to 84.

The warmest previous February day on record was 78 degrees 68 years ago, on February 23, 1874. The weather bureau was established three years before that record.

The heat prostration occurred on Pennsylvania avenue, down which chilly winds usually sweep at this season of the year. C. Newton Bear, 68, was overcome. After treatment at a hospital, his condition was reported as not serious.

From the weather bureau tonight there came the prediction that tomorrow would be warm, but that overcoats would become fashionable again immediately thereafter.

Jail at Montgomery Is Scene of Mutiny

MONTGOMERY, Ala., Feb. 25.—(AP)—Ringleaders of a mutiny of county jail prisoners here last night still were in solitary confinement today and Sheriff John L. Scogin anticipated no further trouble.

When ordered into their cells at 5:30 p. m. yesterday, about one dozen prisoners started the mutiny. Cots were burned, orders of authorities were ignored and a general stampede held away for several minutes. Finally Sheriff Scogin took charge of the trouble-makers and placed them in solitary confinement. They were forced to spend the night with only one blanket and the floor on which to sleep.

Members of the sheriff's force said the prisoners had been complaining for several days of having no drinking cups in their cells at night. The cups were provided yesterday but did not quiet them.

Movie Fan Pays $1,250.00 to see Show!

On March 3, at Waycross, Ga., Mrs. Frank G. Adams, ticket seller at a movie theatre, and wife of the proprietor, accepted a silver dollar from an unidentified person. She gave the proper change and tossed the coin into the till without examining it.

But later, when she checked up, she noticed that the dollar had been minted in 1804. It looked so unusual that she wired a Fort Worth, Texas, coin dealer about it. She received a telegram offering her $1,250.00 for the coin.

According to the Numismatic Company, Dept. 623, Fort Worth, Texas, there are many valuable coins, bills and stamps in circulation for which they will gladly pay big cash premiums. Klein Declares South Faces Boom Period

Assistant Commerce Secretary Optimistic in Jacksonville Address.

JACKSONVILLE, Fla., Feb. 25.—(AP)—Dr. Julius Klein, assistant secretary of commerce, told the international naval stores conference here tonight that the south is on the eve of a great expansion in her foreign trade and in the midst of an economic advance "as fundamental as it is striking."

"In the new industrial south," he said, "we are witnessing a display of extraordinary energy, skill and determination." He declared that the "activities of the south have ramified amazingly. Manifest new interests are being vigorously developed. All sorts of splendidly successful productive efforts have sprung up in recent years. And certain of these—as we are gratified to see—are of an absolutely novel character, promising to make a vital contribution to our American economic life throughout the coming years."

The value of southern manufactures and wages paid in southern factories "have more than tripled in less than 20 years." Dr. Klein explained that references to economic progress of the south included the states of Maryland, West Virginia, Missouri and Oklahoma, in addition to the so-called old south. The address was broadcast by radio by the Columbia broadcasting system.

He said the manufactured products of the south were valued in 1927, the last census year, at $10,371,000,000, or a little more than twice the value of southern crops and live stock. Dr. Klein explained, however, that he mentioned this not by way of criticizing the farm staple industries of the south, "but simply to correct the impression that the south is economically lopsided through overdependence upon cotton and tobacco." This impression, he said, "is, of course, merely uninformed nonsense."

The speaker declared that industrial growth of the south is not entirely a post-war development, "even if by 'war' we should mean the war of '61 to '65." He said that from 1840 to 1890 the south supplied about one-fourth of the pig iron produced in the nation.

"What we have witnessed in recent years has been a magnificent flowering and fruition from seeds that were planted long ago."

In the new industries of the south, such as the tung-oil industry in Florida, the manufacture of willboard from sugar cane waste, chemical development of atmospheric nitrogen in Alabama, West Virginia and other states; petroleum production, power development and the like, Dr. Klein said he saw great possibilities. He emphasized the importance of the naval stores industry, which, while not new to the south, has expanded rapidly. He said United States exports of naval stores in 1929 attained a high value of nearly $3,000,000 surpassing the 1928 figure by 18 per cent.

Bacardi Sees End Of Prohibition In United States

SANTIAGO DE CUBA, Feb. 25.—(UN)—Prohibition is on its last legs in the United States, with Cuba and other tourist nations wishing it long life, Jose E. Bacardi, maker of the world-famous rum of that name, told the United News today.

Bacardi was confident in his prediction, and obviously sincere in his intimation that the possible demise of the dry era would have no more sincere mourners than Cubans.

"If it has done nothing else," he said in an interview, "it has had one result: it has caused thousands of Americans, who otherwise never would have traveled, to visit foreign countries, wet countries."

"When prohibition ends, we and other countries which hitherto have held out personal liberty as bait to tourists will be obliged to offer more substantial attractions."

Bacardi explained the welcoming system at the great Bacardi plant—a free bar, where cocktails are dispensed lavishly.

"Sometimes American visitors are a trifle too appreciative," he said. "At Americans, the first two days in Cuba, drink too much. The next two days they slow up."

"After a week or two they drink like Cuban gentlemen. A drunken Cuban is a rare sight."

The Bacardi supply of rum is housed in a building as large as the Grand Central station in New York. The plant probably attracts more tourists than any other point of interest in this 400-year-old city. The Bacardi brothers, Jose and Facondo, try to welcome all visitors themselves. There is a corps of waiters, however—cultured young men trained to make visitors at home. Each visitor, on departure, is given a souvenir of Bacardi, which is hung about his neck.

The Bacardis are the only persons alive who know the secret formula by which the rather robust flavor and aroma of ordinary rum are refined so that the principal taste and odor are of the fragrant sugar cane from which it is made.

Tex. Guinan's Brother Escapes Jail Sentence

NEW YORK, Feb. 25.—(AP)—The jail sentence of Texas Guinan's brother, Tommy, who a year ago was fined $500 and given a four months' term for aiding and abetting the maintenance of a nuisance in the operation of a night club, was suspended today by Federal Judge Edwin S. Thomas, of Connecticut. The court acted upon an appeal from the conviction.

Judge Thomas, in suspending the sentence, placed Guinan on probation for six months and ordered that the fine be paid. Judge Thomas meted out the original sentence.

Assistant United States Attorney Robert B. Watts said that steps to nullify the probation order and the suspension of the sentence would be taken without delay.

Beer Seized Aboard Vincent Astor's Yacht

SAN JUAN, Porto Rico, Feb. 25.—(UN)—A small quantity of beer was seized by customs officials from the Vincent Astor yacht here February 20, it became known today.

The beer, said to be 188 bottles, was confiscated while the owner and his guests were aboard the yacht. The beverage was included in the list of medical supplies certified by public health physician, but a recent treasury ruling holds that beer is not medicine.

No charges were preferred against Astor.

WINDY CITY REGISTER RINGS UP $17,000,000

Receipts Proceeds of Second Day's Sale of Tax Anticipation Warrants.

CHICAGO, Feb. 25.—(AP)—The municipal cash register had rung to the tune of almost $17,000,000 tonight at the close of the second day's sale of tax anticipation warrants in a "save the city" drive. Proceeds from the sale will be used to finance the governments of the city until tax receipts, delayed by reassessment proceedings, begin to come in next July.

The 25 committees assigned to industrial groups, into which the city was divided have swung into active work and the daily subscriptions are expected to mount considerably beginning tomorrow. Phillip R. Clarke, banker and chairman of the campaign said tonight.

The civic quota of $74,000,000 needed to operate the various municipal and county government until July was apportioned among the 25 groups, chief of which was the bank group with $25,000,000 to raise. The banks already have raised $8,000,000.

The railroad group brought its total to $2,000,000 by subscribing to an additional $400,000 and the mail order group added $400,000 to bring its total up to $775,000 subscribed. The largest single subscription so far designated was the $1,250,000 sent in by the International Harvester Company.

The campaign committee hoped to raise at least $50,000,000 by the end of the week in order to assure a pay day for the 43,000 city, county and public school employees, many of whom have not received a pay check for two months.

Two Counterfeiters Jailed in Florida

MIAMI, Fla., Feb. 25.—(UN)—Federal operatives today ended a chase which began last fall in Waterville, Maine, when they brought before the United States commissioner here a man and a woman alleged to have covered the entire Atlantic coast in the last few months passing counterfeit $20 gold notes.

The couple arrested were C. H. Barney and wife. They said their home was in Waterville.

Federal agents last fall picked up in Waterville a trail of spurious notes and began following it. Suspicion soon centered on the pair. They were traced to Miami, where they had arrived in December and after much investigation they were arrested today. Several of the counterfeit notes were said to have been found in their possession. They operated by driving down the coast in their car, passing the notes at gasoline stations and small stores as they went. In large towns, the secret service agents said, the couple would make headquarters at a good hotel and make side trips to small towns where they would pass their counterfeit money.

Unusual features of design assure EXCEPTIONAL ECONOMY

Though it is known mainly for its superior performance and smoothness, the New Oakland Eight is also exceptionally economical. Unusually accessible parts make its maintenance cost low. Its sound basic design assures long service. And its gasoline mileage equals that of many sixes of similar size and weight.

Its power plant provides ample space for large long-lived bearings. Its short, rigid crankshaft eliminates torsional vibration and bending, two enemies of long life. Generous water passages around cylinders and valves protect against overheating, and a water recirculation system insures uniform cooling.

Complete down-draft carburetion and manifolding promote more economical use of fuel. A new-type cylinder head insures uniform combustion. Positive lubrication under 25 to 30 lbs. pressure supplies a constant flow of oil to moving parts. And crankcase ventilation prevents dilution of engine oil.

Furthermore, Oakland's wood-and-steel Fisher bodies resist wear, being well constructed of materials chosen for hard service and long life. These features keep operating and maintenance costs low, and protect the car's ultimate resale value.

In view of its many advantages, the New Oakland is very moderately priced. Why not come in and drive this newest General Motors eight whose superior performance is made all the more attractive by its exceptional economy?

President's Economy Stand Provokes Senate Debate

Glass Charges Hoover Seeks To Blame Congress for Spending Urged by White House.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 25.—(AP)—President Hoover today reinforced his appeal to congressional leaders to keep expenditures within budget estimates by calling upon the "people back home" to rally to the support of the administration in its program of economy. At the same time the senate became embroiled in a discussion of appropriation. Carter Glass, of Virginia, a democrat, accused the chief executive of trying to blame congress for the expenditure of funds. He argued Mr.

Hoover has set up a straw man and then knocked him down. The president in his remarks at the White House said that only a small per cent of the proposals to spend money emanated from congress, making clear it was his opinion that such propositions originated from groups all over the country.

Mr. Hoover said many of the proposals eventually should be and undoubtedly would be undertaken in future years, but added that this was no time for general expansion of public expenditures, "although there were sufficient resources to meet budget needs and such necessities as marginal cases of disability among veterans and the speeding up of public works."

Vigorous Reply. In the senate the remarks by Glass, a former democratic secretary of the treasury, drew a vigorous reply from Senator Watson, of Indiana, the republican leader, in defense of the White House breakfast conference yesterday, at which Mr. Hoover outlined to congressional leaders his desire to hold expenditures within bounds outlined by the budget. The debate attracted a round of senators. Senator Borah, of Idaho, one of the leaders of the republican independents, remarked that "there are some of us who will go to the limit in this drive to keep down appropriations, and as chairman of one senate committee I am going to start on two bills that have been recommended by the administration."

When Watson expressed the view that the attack today was aimed at the administration Senator Glass heatedly retorted that he had "never raised this issue as a partisan matter, and I have never done any such thing."

"But I don't propose to sit supinely by," continued the Virginian, "when the White House undertakes to raise resentment against this body."

Recommendations Read. Glass read the recommendations of the president to congress for appropriations at this session, and said the congress had passed these down by $20,000,000 in enacting the law.

The White House is trying to stir resentment against the congress," he continued, "by the unmistakable intimation that we have indulged in a riot of extravagance and yet the president finds himself in the humiliating situation of having recommended to us $20,000,000 more than congress is willing to appropriate."

Senator Watson assumed a full share of responsibility for the White House conference; said he did apprehend danger in the many appropriation bills before congress and expressed the hope that the conference and today's debate would help "stem the tide."

Senator Watson asked, "Does the senator from Virginia think that I have any resentment of congress?" The Indiana senator then said the $100,000,000 tax reduction authorized for this year and a falling off in imports after passage of the house tariff bill had reduced government revenues.

Have Right. "We therefore have a right," he asserted, "to point out that if these bills are passed we would have to make a bond issue or increase taxes."

Senator La Follette, republican, Wisconsin, interrupted to say that "it should be pointed out that there is any danger in the treasury, it is a result of the tax reduction and the responsibility rests with the executive and not upon either branch of congress."

The White House announcement yesterday said that after meeting budget requirements there would be about $50,000,000 available for other appropriations, but that all the bills pending in congress contemplated an expenditure of approximately $1,725,000,000 which could only be met by something like a 40 per cent tax increase.

"No intimation was made at the conference yesterday," Watson said, "of extravagance on the part of congress in what it has done so far on appropriations. In fact, the president specifically stated there that the budget of appropriations for the next year must be carried out and some leeway given to take care of unavoidable expenditures such as those for flood control."

"This meeting at the White House came about by reason of the fact that certain leaders of the house had become alarmed over the mass of bills seeking increased appropriations in their body. They didn't know whether they could stem the tide."

Glass said one would "readily suppose" in reading the White House statement of yesterday that this congress had been exceptionally extravagant in the consideration of proposed appropriations, or it had been guilty of improvident, flagrant, extravagant expenditures.

"There hasn't been a session of congress in 50 years, if ever," he continued, "where numerous bills were not introduced chiefly for consumption back home—appropriations that proponents of the legislation never contemplated the remotest belief would be enacted into law."

PLUMBER TESTIFIES AGAINST SOLO. CHICAGO, Feb. 25.—(AP)—A plumber told a criminal court jury today that he had borrowed $400 from a bank and given it to Congressman Stanley H. Kunz from Roman Trochowski to get the latter's promised influence in getting his brother a police job.

The congressman and his son, Stanley Kunz, Jr., were charged with operating a confidence game and with obtaining money under false pretenses. The specific charge is that they accepted $400 from Roman Trochowski to get the latter's application approved by the civil service commission.

"I got $400 from the bank in a cashier's check and went to the congressman's home with Roman. He said 'I don't like to take a check. Better make it currency,' but he finally put it in his pocket."

Trochowski said nothing developed and, after six months, he tried to get in touch with Congressman Kunz. He then threatened to complain to Patrick Roche, chief investigator for the state's attorney, Trochowski stated, and went on to say that he finally got $400 from Congressman Kunz saying he could not return the money because he had given it to Edward Denmark, civil service commissioner. Kunz added, however, according to Trochowski, that he would put Roman on the force.

"I don't want him on now," Trochowski testified he replied. "I want my money back."

He then told of taking the matter up with the state's attorney's office and of receiving the money back from Kunz. He said he signed a receipt and found out later the receipt was for a loan. Roman and Emil Trochowski took the stand and corroborated Walter's testimony.

Strange Sea Attack Reported by Captain

AVAILON, Santa Catalina Island, Cal., Feb. 25.—(AP)—Captain Tom Lobosoff, of the fishing boat Taiyo, put into port here tonight and recounted a story of being fired upon by a mysterious assailant yesterday at San Nicolas island, a barren bit of land 40 miles west of here. One member of his two-man crew was slain and the other probably fatally wounded.

The skipper said his boat was anchored in a cove on the island and he and Steve Somerakko, of Lancaster, Cal., and John Heise, of San Pedro, Cal., were below deck when they heard a disturbance ashore. He said Somerakko went out to reconnoiter and was shot dead. Heise then went out and was critically wounded.

Captain Lobosoff said he crept onto the deck to get a glimpse of the assailants, but was unable to see anybody. At nightfall he maneuvered the vessel out to sea and fired two shots were fired, Captain Lobosoff said, both ripping into the cabin.

Captain William Bright, of the Los Angeles county sheriff's homicide squad, said he would send two deputies here tomorrow to investigate.

Ontario Diver Saved From Death in River

FITZROY HARBOR, Ont., Feb. 25.—(AP)—Hector Roy, a diver, was recovering today from the effects of five hours' imprisonment beneath the icy waters of the Ottawa river.

He was drawn into a deep hole in the river bottom yesterday and held there by a strong current when he went down to work on a cofferdam being constructed in connection with a hydro-power development at Chat's Falls.

When the efforts of six men pulling on a strong line about his body failed to dislodge him, three fellow divers went down and built a triangular cribbing about him, which they reinforced with mattresses. The cribbing deflected the current sufficiently to relieve the pressure so the imprisoned diver could be drawn up. He suffered chiefly from the extreme coldness of the water.

A month ago, Peter Trans lost his life when he was caught beneath the waters of Riviere Aux Outardes on the north shore of the St. Lawrence river while engaged in similar work. His body was recovered after he had been under water more than 72 hours.

FINANCE FIRM SUED FOR $1,080 INTEREST

C. M. Cain Charges That Amount Was Illegally Collected on Loan.

In an answer and counter-claim filed in Fulton superior court C. M. Cain, defendant in a suit brought by the American Finance Company, Tuesday asked for a judgment against the plaintiff of $1,080, charging that this amount was wrongfully and illegally collected.

In his answer and counter-claim Cain alleges that the finance company required of him the execution of a complete new assignment at each payment, purportedly as a sale conveyance of wages being earned at the time, but that this requirement was merely a sham or subterfuge, scheme or device, used by the plaintiff to disguise the real nature of the transaction, which was an advance of money with requirements of periodic rent or interest.

Cain charges that while the writings purported to be absolute and original assignments to pass all title and rights of possession, all references as to the delivery of his wages were omitted in order to facilitate the scheme of renewals and the collection of alleged excessive interest charges. In order to conceal the alleged illegality, the plaintiff orally agreed that the defendant should not leave any of his wages with his employer for the plaintiff but should collect the wages as usual and pay the renewal charges, executing the renewal assignments which were held as collateral security for the loan.

Although the finance company knew that the sum of $37.00, eight per cent a year, was the legal charge for the period of time the money was borrowed, yet it charged and received the sum of $1,080, Cain alleges. Cain is represented by V. K. Meador and J. L. R. Boyd.

Table Show Is Held By Rabbit Breeders

The table show held by the Atlanta Rabbit Breeders' Club Saturday was a big success. Chairman B. N. Anderson reported at the semi-monthly meeting at the Ansley hotel. The show was held at the Sunnyview Rabbitry, owned by The Georgia Baptist Orphans Home in Hapeville, the manager, J. H. Cash, acting as host. More than 100 rabbits were entered and the show was well attended.

J. G. Smith won the special prize, an oil painting of a New Zealand rabbit, donated by A. A. Ransom, of East Point. Plans are under way for the largest rabbit show ever held in this section at the Southeastern Fair this fall. The number of entries are limited to 300 rabbits as it is the intention of Oscar Mills, secretary of the Fair Association, to hold a quality rather than a quantity show.

Atlanta Boy Wins Magazine Contest

Atlanta has given the nation a number of distinguished writers and it has another in training. Elliott Goldstein, son of M. F. Goldstein, prominent Atlanta lawyer, has just won the first prize of $5 offered by The American Boy for the best solution of its "Haunted Airways," a mystery air serial which attracted clever work from a great number of amateur author sleuths all over the country.

Young Goldstein is editor-in-chief of the O'Keefe Junior High paper. The American Boy announcement follows:

Canny Detective Writers!
Here are the winners of the "Haunted Airways" contest—the amateur author-sleuths who wrote the best solutions to Thomson Burtis' mystery air serial:

First prize ($5, Elliott Goldstein, Atlanta, Ga.; second prize ($3), William Morrison, Manistique, Mich.; third prize ($2), Jack Korahak, Chicago, Ill. These three, and the next 46 winners will receive copies of "Ruse Farrell, Circus Flyer," autographed by Thomson Burtis. Their names and the first-prize letter will be printed in April.

School Moving Bids To Be Opened Friday

Bids for moving headquarters of the Atlanta public schools to new quarters in the six top floors of the new $1,000,000 city hall will be opened Friday afternoon and the moving probably will take place March 8, it was announced Tuesday by William C. Slate, chairman of the buildings and grounds committee of the board of education.

Officials are anxious to occupy the building as soon as possible, it was said, and the next regular meeting of the board of education will be slated for the auditorium in the new building. The board meets at 3 o'clock in the afternoon, March 11.

BROWN DENIES GUILT

Alleged Bunco Man Objects to Handcuffs.

J. A. "Military" Brown, who returned here from California Sunday to answer federal charges of mail fraud, Tuesday issued a statement through Joseph O. Ewing, one of his attorneys, in which he bitterly complained of being "handcuffed" and brought to the office of the district attorney for the purposes of identification by Noah L. Davis, his alleged victim.

"I only want a square deal," his statement declared, "and I think it would have been only fair to be presented for identification in a line of other people. I don't think anybody would select me as having been in Atlanta in 1920."

The statement contained a vigorous denial of any intention of pleading guilty and declared that he had never made any overtures to the district attorney. In anticipation of lengthy court battles, Brown has engaged attorneys Frank Doughman and Mr. Ewing.

He is charged in a federal indictment with misuse of mails in connection with an alleged confidence game operated here in 1920 as an aid of Floyd Woodward. He was the object of a nation-wide search for 10 years until his arrest in California some weeks ago.

Brooks Delivering Series of Lectures is invited. This department is making a fine showing, President Fountain declared.

Record Established In Moving Permits

Monday was a red letter day in Atlanta, in so far as moving was concerned, and Mrs. Frank Kempton, clerk in charge of issuing moving permits experienced her busiest season.

Permits for the day totaled $70.50 at 25 cents each making a total of 282 permits.

This is the largest number of permits ever issued by the department in any single day.

Sea Collision.

NEW YORK, Feb. 25.—(AP)—Arriving in the harbor today with 263 passengers from Havana, the Cunard liner Carmania reported that she was in a collision late yesterday with the combination tanker and freighter

Balbutta, just north of Cape Hatteras off Dimon shoal. The Carmania was damaged slightly above the water line on the port bow, and Captain William Brotherton reported, no one was injured and the liner proceeded under her own power.

Ministers Discuss 'Back to Methodism'

"Back to Methodism" was the topic of the Atlanta A. M. E. Ministers' Union, meeting Tuesday in Big Bethel A. M. E. church. Dr. W. B. L. Clark, president and the Rev. R. H. Porter acted as secretary. A paper on "How to Conduct Public Worship" provoked much discussion by Bishop Flipper, who charged that the young minister of this day and time is responsible, in many of the churches, in changing the order of service designated.

Dr. W. O. Slade questioned the right of ministers to wear "robes and caps" on all service occasions. This topic was discussed by Dr. J. T. Wilkerson, C. A. Winfield and J. E. Reese. Dr. B. V. Thornton reported on "Current Events."

Ministers Changed.

MADRID, Feb. 25.—(AP)—The official gazette today published a decree naming Elias Tormo y Monzo as minister of public instruction in the new Berenguer cabinet. He replaces the Duke of Alba, who has become minister of state.

OKLAHOMA DRY GUNS KILL ONE, WOUND ONE

Officials Declare Men Justified in Slaying Resident and Shooting Guest.

TULSA, Okla., Feb. 25.—(AP)—While state and federal investigators tonight expressed belief that the shooting of two men in a liquor raid here last night by federal prohibition agents was justified, indications were that the agents would be charged with murder in order that they may have a chance to legally clear themselves of responsibility. George Lewis Redding, 30, at whose suburban home the shooting occurred, died early today. He was shot three times. Lawrence Morgan, a guest in the Redding home, received a bullet wound above the heart and his condition was regarded as critical. The three prohibition agents in the raid were held in technical custody by the United States marshal, W. L. Coffey, assistant county attorney, said he believed the shooting was justified. State murder charges probably would be filed against the three agents for their own protection in establishing their innocence, he said. W. L. Giddens, federal prohibition administrator for the eastern Oklahoma district, defended the officers. F. W. Wolverton, the agent who admitted firing the shots, was in danger of his life when he fired his gun, Giddens declared. Wolverton said he fired after Redding had attempted to shoot him with a pistol which Mrs. Redding had pulled from under a pillow and handed to her husband. No shots were fired by the two officers who accompanied Wolverton, M. E. Craig and H. B. Jones. Before his death Redding denied he had a gun or threatened the officers. Morgan also denied Redding was armed. Wolverton said he and three other agents went to Redding home with a warrant based on a liquor sale to an undercover man. The officer said nearly 25 gallons of whisky was found in the house. Mrs. Redding, the agent said, broke a quart of liquor upon their arrival. She was not arrested.

TWO MORE DAYS GIVEN TO HEARING OF WETS

WASHINGTON, Feb. 25.—(AP)—Two additional days have been allowed the wets advocating modification and repeal of the eighteenth amendment in which to present their argument on the anti-prohibition meeting before the house judiciary committee.

The witness slates are so large that Representative Linthicum, democrat, Maryland, leader of the house wet bloc, and Dr. F. W. Buck, secretary of the Federal Dispensary-Tax Reduction League, said they doubted if all could be heard.

At the judiciary committee rooms it was made known that no list of witnesses had been received from Rev. Edwin Dinwiddie, of Washington, who has been requested by Chairman Graham, of the committee, to take charge of the dry witnesses.

The first half of the all-day session tomorrow has been set aside for the witnesses advocating the Sabath resolution to modify the amendment to permit federal dispensaries to distribute liquor in packages.

W. W. Atterbury, president of the Pennsylvania railroad, will be the principal witness for the Association Against the Prohibition Amendment, which asked outright repeal of the dry article. He will come to Washington on a special train in order to testify late tomorrow afternoon, and John G. Gebhart, representing the research department of the Association Against the Prohibition Amendment, are among those to appear before the hearings end.

"REPUBLICAN" BAR
ASKED BY BAILEY

RALEIGH, N. C., Feb. 25.—(AP)—Josiah W. Bailey, opponent of United States Senator F. M. Simmons for the North Carolina democratic senatorial nomination, asserts that "republicans" will be kept out of the party's primary this year.

Bailey made the assertion in a statement he issued yesterday in connection with the opening of his campaign headquarters in this city. He did not explain whether he intended an effort would be made to bar from the democratic party all those who voted the republican ticket in the last presidential election.

In that election North Carolina, normally democratic by a safe majority, gave Hoover, the republican candidate, a majority of more than 60,000 votes. Senator Simmons, a life-long democrat, who is now seeking renomination, bitterly opposed the democratic nominee, Alfred E. Smith. Bailey was a warm Smith supporter.

MIDDLE-AGED WORKER DEFENDED BY DAVIS

Labor Secretary Denounces Practice of Dropping 50-Year-Olds.

JACKSONVILLE, Fla., Feb. 25.—(AP)—Secretary of Labor James J. Davis, addressing the annual meeting of the Mooseheart of the World here today, denounced the policy by some corporations of dropping men past 50 years of age from the payroll.

"There has never been a time in our history when the man of advanced years has had a more difficult time to keep up with the procession," said the secretary. "I have heard older men complain they have been ruthlessly swept aside. It is sometimes easy to believe this when we see employers foolishly dropping the man of 50 years of age from the payroll as some of them do."

"This evil practice cannot be too hotly denounced. It is bad business to retire a faithful worker at the very time of life when he is steepest and most productive."

As for "seeming antagonisms between the old and the young," Mr. Davis declared, that "the great fault here is that the older people allowed themselves to grow old. It is not the revolt of youth we must fear, but this willingness of our elders to sit back and be old so long as we do so, it is only natural for the young to regard us as 'mossbacks.'"

"We must learn to delight in placing young men and old men side by side in the same jobs and occupations, the older man keeping himself young from the vim and enthusiasm of the youth beside him."

"We must learn to delight in placing young men and old men side by side in the same jobs and occupations, the older man keeping himself young from the vim and enthusiasm of the youth beside him."

Daughter of Tammany Chief Becomes Bride

NEW YORK, Feb. 25.—(AP)—With a papal blessing, received by cable a few minutes before the wedding, Miss Veronica Curry, only daughter of John F. Curry, leader of Tammany Hall, today became the bride of Edmund M. McCarthy, a young attorney of Springfield, Mass.

They were married in St. Patrick's cathedral by Patrick Cardinal Hayes in the presence of more than 1,000 guests.

Mayor James J. Walker was among the guests. He came back from Florida especially to be present.

Lady Nancy Astor Steers Joe Robinson

LONDON, Feb. 25.—(AP)—In her breeziest manner Lady Astor steered Senator Joseph T. Robinson, of the American delegation to the naval conference, about the lobbies of the house of commons, this afternoon.

Rounding up those whom she termed "the best looking members of the bolshevik party," she introduced Senator Robinson to many L. C. members, including the fashionably dressed Major Graham Pole, Andrew MacLaren and Jack Lees.

All expressed their pleasure at meeting the senator from Arkansas, and helped Lady Astor to show him the sights of the house.

Harry Lauder Reveals Truth On 'Broken Rib'

GARY, Ind., Feb. 25.—(AP)—Sir Harry Lauder dissipated reports that he had been playing before Chicago audiences with a broken rib.

Various reports had been published concerning Lauder's injury attributed to the doctor. They had asserted that the comedian had fractured the rib and had gone on playing without realizing it and also that he had been playing heroically despite his injury.

In the first place, the comedian said, his rib was not broken. In the second, the slight injury he sustained had been adequately treated. Third, he's now in good shape and was while in Chicago.

Sir Harry said that while he was playing in Cedar Rapids, Iowa, February 11, he slipped while stepping into a bathtub in a hotel. He fell against the lavatory and his right side struck the corner of the marble top.

After a week of traveling in Iowa and Wisconsin he reached Chicago with his side still bruised. He showed it to a hotel physician, Dr. F. W. McNamara and the latter found that the cartilage had been slightly damaged, but that the rib itself was unhurt. He applied adhesive tape.

Confessed Murderer Indicted in Gotham

NEW YORK, Feb. 25.—(AP)—James Baker, 28, confessed slayer of 10 men, today was indicted for the murder of Henry Garry, aged watchman at the Guggenheim laboratory on the night of December 27, 1928.

Baker was indicted upon evidence presented after two alienists had pronounced him sane.

Baker was brought here from Detroit, where he was apprehended last week. Gaw died from poison which had been placed in his coffee cup as he sat drinking at a table in the laboratory.

Baker said that he killed Gaw and described his movements in detail. Previously he had confessed that he had poisoned seven other people, of which no records could be found. He said he killed two other men at Detroit, which actually occurred.

HAITIAN COMMISSION SAILS FOR PORTO RICO

U. S. Group Named To Study Island Conditions Leaves.

KEY WEST, Fla., Feb. 25.—(AP)—Members of President Hoover's commission to investigate conditions in Haiti sailed aboard the U. S. S. Rochester at 11 o'clock this morning for Haiti.

The party left Key West at 9:50 o'clock aboard the U. S. S. Falcon, which took them to the Rochester, anchored five miles off shore.

Headed by W. Cameron Forbes, former governor general of the Philippines, the commission arrived here by train at 7:45 o'clock this morning from Palm Beach, where they held their first meeting last night. The Palm Beach gathering was in the nature of a get-together. Governor Forbes explained, and added that at the meeting he had announced that President Hoover had named Willis J. Abbott, editor of the Christian Science Monitor, as a sixth member of the commission.

Mr. Abbott is not with the party. Governor Forbes said, but is expected to proceed direct to Haiti.

Other members of the commission are Henry P. Fletcher, Elie Vezine, James Kearney and William Allen White.

The commission had breakfast with Captain S. R. Doyle, commandant of the seventh naval district here, and then boarded the Falcon to be taken to the Rochester off shore.

Churches Admonished To Keep U.S. Out of War

EVANSTON, Ill., Feb. 25.—(AP)—The responsibility of keeping America out of war was placed on the churches today by Dr. John Lathrop, pastor of the Church of the Savior, Brooklyn, N. Y., in presiding at a section of the third national study conference on the churches and world peace, sponsored by the federal council of the Churches of Christ in America. "If America should ever become involved in war, contrary to the Kellogg peace pact, such war would be evidence of failure of the churches and an unanswerable indictment against them," he declared at a round table discussion on "The Church, the Kellogg Pact, and Peace Policies."

She's Grateful For The Good Position Secured Thru The Southern Business College

"Far Beyond My Expectations," Writes Miss Martha Jacobs About the Southern.

There will be busy times around at the Southern Business College during the weeks beginning March 3 and March 10, because young men and young women from Atlanta and various parts of the country will be enrolling for the spring term.

Yesterday, when a former pupil brought a friend in for enrollment, he remarked, "I am bringing you another patron. Your many thousands of graduates would keep your school full through their recommendations even if you did not advertise."

Two families have sent seven of their children through the Southern—fourteen pupils from two households. Many others have sent from two to five each.

Good-will is the Southern's best asset; its thorough courses of study, approved by the board of examiners of the National Association of Accredited Commercial Schools, is responsible for the Southern's great popularity.

Miss Martha Jacobs' brother attended the Southern, finished his course, secured a good position and recommended the school highly to his sister.

Miss Jacobs states, in the following letter received by the Southern, that although highly praised by her brother, she found the school far beyond her expectations.

Atlanta, Ga., February 22, 1930. Southern Shortland & Business University, Atlanta, Ga. Gentlemen:

Some months ago I was placed by your Employment Department with the International Agricultural Corporation, one of Atlanta's well-known firms.

I wish to express my gratitude and thanks to you for the help and interest given to me while I was attending the Southern. I was especially impressed with the personal attention shown to each pupil.

My brother attended the Southern a year or so before I entered, and it was largely through his high recom-

W. R. Bridges, Field Representative, who will call upon those interested in business courses.

mentation that I chose this school. However, I found it far beyond my expectations.

It will always be a pleasure to me to recommend the Southern Shortland and Business University as a most desirable and efficient school for any young man or woman who wishes to enter the business world.

Respectfully,
(MISS) MARTHA JACOBS.

Can You Depend on GAS for Heat?

The monthly statements of the Louisville Gas and Electric Company, which SELLS natural gas, bear the following printed notice to customers:

"DO NOT DEPEND ENTIRELY UPON GAS"

"Every Natural Gas supply is subject to unavoidable accident and interruption. To insure comfort, users should be provided with emergency heating facilities."

Coal Is Dependable, Safe, Economical

When your coal supply runs low, a telephone message will bring you a truckload before your house grows chilly. The coldest weather has never prevented Atlanta dealers from meeting their customers' demands.

Natural gas is pumped to Atlanta from Louisiana, more than 400 miles, under rivers, through mountains. Can you be sure that service will not be interrupted at times? And what if this occurs in bitter cold weather!

Get the FACTS about the Cost

Heat is simply a matter of "heat units" and efficiency in the use of fuel. A thousand cubic feet of natural gas contains a little less than 1,000,000 heat units. A ton of good average coal contains 28,000,000 heat units. It thus requires 28,000 cubic feet of gas to equal one ton of coal.

The ton of coal will cost, on an average, Seven Dollars. The 28,000 cubic feet of gas will cost Twenty-One Dollars. That is figuring at the "minimum rate" of 75 cents per thousand, and does not include the "service charge" nor the higher rates on the first 5,000 cubic feet.

"Salesman's talk," unauthorized, with vague oral "guarantees," will not keep your gas bills down.

This advertisement is a frank movement by Atlanta coal dealers to protect their own business. But at the same time it is intended to protect their customers from assuming an increased living cost without full knowledge of the facts. Ask your coal dealer. He will show you figures which cannot be disputed.

END THE TARIFF LOSSES.

It is the opinion of the astute Brooklyn Daily Eagle that the report that President Hoover favors the tariff bill being framed by the senate coalition, more than the form given it by the house or that produced by the senate finance committee, is worthy of belief. It concludes, in referring to the work of the coalition, that "if their work is not to his liking he must have radically altered his position," as announced to the special session when he convened it.

The planer fact seems to be that the president would now prefer to have no tariff bill enacted and to let the present tariff act stand indefinitely.

As for the agricultural rates they would largely remain subject to increases up to 50 per cent through findings of the federal tariff commission and his authority by the flexible provision to raise or lower any particular rate by that 50 per cent margin. Taken in connection with the work of the federal farm board and its half billion dollars revolving fund, President Hoover is privately understood to think agriculture would not suffer by the failure to enact a new tariff scheme just now.

In the case of the non-agricultural industries—the few that may be feeling evil effects from foreign competition—the flexible provision will allow him to deal helpfully for their benefit.

But above all these considerations looms the destructive effects that the delayed tariff situation is having upon the general business of the nation. Manufacturing and trade are suffering from the past eleven months of uncertainty as to the terms upon which they can proceed for the future. Mills are either shut down or slowed down because tariff rates are floating in the air. Raw material men find their markets shrunken. Workers in the industries are being thrown out into unemployment in larger regiments almost daily. Merchants are buying from hand to mouth, not daring to fully stock on present prices. The people at large, with consequent reduced incomes, are unable to buy normally and thus add to the general business stagnation.

The situation in a country like this is not only scandalous, but is growing intolerable. The blame for it all must be plastered broadly upon the congress. While the greater blame must go upon the republican majority that ruthlessly overrode the Hoover policy, the democrats who are helping to prolong the sectional and political tariff scrapping cannot escape from their proper share of the popular indignation.

What the country wants, and wants quickly, is the passage of the tariff bill in some shape—any shape—and the placing of the responsibility of approving or vetoing it upon the president. If he can get his hands upon it, whatever he may do to it, will at least end the uncertainty that is costing the nation more than all the losses from agricultural pests and Wall Street crashes. The prosperity of the people is imperiled by the prolonged and indefensible tariff haggling.

EDGING TOWARD PEACE.

The statement made to the French chamber of deputies by the new premier, Camille Chautemps, is far more conservative and constructive than was expected from the leader of the socialist party now in the saddle. It is especially reassuring that the French delegates at the London naval conference will not stubbornly resist sincere and honorable accords in the matter of naval reductions.

At bottom responsible French statesmen, financiers and economists, know that their people need the large economies that they would obtain by agreeing to a five-power pact to hold their several naval establishments nearer to a general peace status.

There are, of course, in all the countries concerned, special nationalist sentiments that must be delicately dealt with. The age-long accreted psychology of no great people can be reversed overnight, save by a dire calamity or common peril. The French conviction of security needs is, doubtless, as unchangeable as the American conviction that this nation cannot afford any entanglement in European politics.

Happily, an accord to live up to the spirit of the Kellogg-Brand pact, renouncing war as an instrument of international policy, does not require a sacrifice of rational national securities. That fact is yet to be impressed upon the French electorate and it may take other and later steps than the London parley can make to bring the people of France to full faith in the will of the world to unbreakable peace. The promise is that much sentiment to that end will accompany even a partial naval reduction accord at London.

JIM HAM COMES BACK.

The Illinois senatorial contest this year promises to be one of the most spectacular and eye-absorbing of all those that will occur in 34 states. Not only will there be a preliminary trial-heat between Ruth Hanna McCormick and Senator Deneen for the republican nomination, but after one or the other obtains it, she or he will then have a real starting-gate to finish-wire race to run with an opponent whose racing powers are not to be despised.

Ex-United States Senator Jim Ham Lewis has thrown out his derby hat for the democratic nomination and seems likely to get it without radical opposition. He was no slouch as a senator when he had the job and as a rough-and-tumble campaigner he has few peers in the democratic ranks. The prospect in Illinois looks good to him and to the party managers, and the "come-back" of Jim Ham into the Sucker state arena is not relished a little bit by the republican leaders in the state.

He has issued a tentative, platform that reads like an omnibus indictment of the republican party for every sort of political sin from gold-bricking the farmer to grand larceny of oil from Uncle Sam. And to cap all he denounces prohibition as "national tyranny"—and that will taste succulently to many thousands of republicans as well as to many thousands of democrats. Hence it goes without saying that Illinois is already in for a senatorial contest that will make her the cynosure of the nation.

WHY CRIME FLOURISHES.

The bumptious egotism of the American people gets a severe jolt when our crime figures are laid alongside those of England. Recently we printed a cable dispatch from London which was captioned: "Twenty-Seven of Britain's Prisons Closed; Jail Population Declines 70 Per Cent Since 1914."

In the United States our prison population went up in the same period from an average of 27,000 in 1914 to 47,000 in 1926, and is now undoubtedly much above that latter figure. Instead of closing state and national penitentiaries, we are spending many millions of dollars today to enlarge old prisons and to build new federal prisons.

Criminologists agree that while England suffered far more from World War aftermaths than did the United States, and now has more poverty and unemployment to care for out of public funds, it still has not been subjected to the crime wave that rolls and resurges over this country. So the World War demoralization explanation of our criminal statistic fails to hold up on clear examination.

Social experts find the explanation in the general laxness of our law enforcers in running down law breakers and the failure of the courts generally to make the law a terror to evil-doers. It is world-known that English criminal laws are enforced and their penalties promptly applied without fear or favor. It is commonly believed that when our officials and courts are as faithful to their duties as are those in England the crime wave in this country will subside with amazing promptness.

The Literary Digest is to spend a million dollars again on another wet and dry poll of the country. But will it get more for the money than if it simply polled Bishop Cannon and Captain Stuyvesant?

New York has enacted a law to permanently revoke the license of a motorist twice convicted of driving while intoxicated. But why wait for a second conviction?

Chicago gangsters have turned pot-hunters. They shoot a rival while harnessed up in a hospital bed.

Senator Philips, of Colorado, refuses to offer for re-election. He seems to know that this is going to be a democratic year out his way.

THE WORLD'S LOOKING AND LISTENING WINDOW

BY PIERRE VAN PAASEN

Frenchman On Palestine

M. Albert Londres, who is one of the "maîtres de reportage" in France, that is to say, a star reporter, has just published a volume of impressions collected on a voyage which took him from New York to Jerusalem, with the object of observing Jewish life in such diverse places as the Bronx, the Galician ghettos, and the Palestinian colonies. He practically retraced the road gone over by Ludwig Lewinsohn, the young Jew who resulted in that work of beauty and vision called "Israel." Only M. Londres went further than the American writer, for he penetrated the depths of Russia. He had completed his tour in August last year when the troubles broke out in the Holy Land. He had just returned from following as a title for his travelogue: "The Wandering Jew Has Arrived," but the reports of the massacres made him fear that he might have to change the title. So he rushed back to Jerusalem. Once more he went through the land from Dan to Beersheba, questioning, observing, looking and listening. He has written a good deal in the company of M. Londres last September and October. I knew that he was wary of any ready-made conclusions. He surrounded officials and spokesmen and such people as much as he could, without neglecting the testimony of the people and peasants, Jewish and Arab alike. And so after six weeks' diligent inquiry he did not feel that he needed to write a travelogue, but a book, which remains: "The Wandering Jew Has Come Home!"

Zealous Mamboutis.

A tribe of pygmies, known as the Mamboutis, living in deep Africa's darkest wilderness, has been on the range, according to a newspaper published in the Congo, for the first time ever heard of the Mamboutis before, with the possible exception of Stanley or Livingstone. They may be that tribe of quiet, smiling, and friendly-looking people whom Stanley tells in his book, "Zanzibar," that they would not believe him when he told them that outside their forest homes were fields and rivers and sunshine. At any rate the Mamboutis have been on the warpath. Leaving their wives and children behind, the warriors of the tribe, who had armed themselves with spears and bows, have been carrying out raids in the territories of neighboring pygmies tribes. For some time now, apparently, for, the Congo paper says, they captured a large number of prisoners. They did not bring away any of the prisoners, but that there wasn't anything to loot in the first place. Women, so often the object of a hostile raid between neighboring tribes, were carried away. The Mamboutis have all they can manage in this particular commodity. The prisoners, gone on the Congo paper, were treated with the utmost kindness, but only for a length of time, however. After two or three weeks they were brought out in the clearing, interrogated for their names, and as their answers did not satisfy their captors, mercilessly slain. When the Mamboutis had killed off a batch of prisoners they returned to the clearing and found a new lot. Had these sweet little dwarfs suddenly been turned into bloodthirsty savages? One wonders. Nothing of the kind. They became Christians some years ago and were very happy and contented. So happy, in fact, that they wanted to share their happiness with neighboring tribes. Hence the raid. Somehow the story sounds familiar.

Health Talks

BY DR. WILLIAM BRADY

Be It Ever So Cold and Damp—It Won't Affect Your Health.

A correspondent assures me that he doesn't believe in "lowered resistance," either. He says he would call it, rather, "heightened inducement." Then he proceeds to tell me that drafts, wet feet, cold, damp weather, and the like "heighten his inducement," as a consequence of which he is sure to catch any "cold" to which he happens to be exposed.

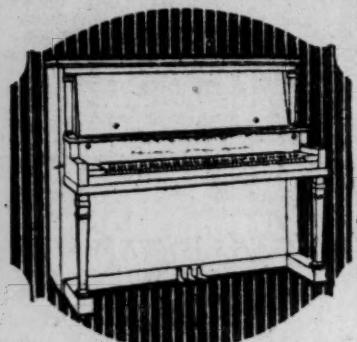

All of which is a mere quibble. My friend doesn't agree with me at all. He cherishes a whole-souled belief in the common conjecture, that when one comes down with an acute respiratory infection, one has probably been caught with one's normal or natural "resistance" down.

This is a comfortable little theory for shallow minds, but unfortunately it is only a theory, and no one has been able to show scientifically or by other means that the body is any more or less susceptible to cold or wet than it is to heat or dryness. In fact there is no such thing as "resistance," low or high, so far as the body is concerned. It is a well-known fact that the body is not a solid mass, but is made up of many different parts, each of which is in constant motion. It is this motion that gives the body its life and energy. It is also this motion that makes the body susceptible to disease. When the motion is normal, the body is healthy. When the motion is abnormal, the body is diseased. It is this abnormal motion that we call "resistance." It is not a thing, but a process. It is a process that can be heightened or lowered. It is a process that can be controlled. It is a process that can be used to our advantage. It is a process that can be used to our detriment. It is a process that can be used to our benefit. It is a process that can be used to our harm. It is a process that can be used to our glory. It is a process that can be used to our shame. It is a process that can be used to our honor. It is a process that can be used to our dishonor. 'ANGEL OF BROADWAY' ON SECOND HONEYMOON

Former Atlanta Salvation Army Worker Marries Sportsman.

SAN FRANCISCO, Feb. 25.—(AP)—Rhoda Crawford, known as the "angel of Broadway" when as a Salvation Army captain she conducted meetings in Times Square, was on a honeymoon today with her second husband. She was married yesterday to Raymond B. Splivola, San Francisco broker and polo player, in the First Congregational church. The couple left immediately on a motor trip. Her application for a marriage license last Thursday followed within three days announcement from St. Petersburg, Fla., that a divorce had been granted her first husband, N. J. Harold Sommers, to whom she was married in 1924. They had been living apart more than two years, during part of which she was engaged in religious work in San Mateo, Cal. She sprang into prominence in October, 1922, when she clashed with New York police who charged that the crowds which gathered at her street meetings disrupted traffic. She resigned from the Salvation Army in 1923, announcing she planned to engage in other religious work.

The old woman who lived in the shoe is famous far and wide for the number of her children but it is exceedingly doubtful if she ever was blessed with such a family of beauties as cavorts in the "fairy tales" number of the Junior League Follies of 1930 which opened a week's run at the Erlanger theater Monday night.

In any event, the response of the audience during the first two performances is more than sufficient justification for such a statement. The scene is preceded by a local number by Eloise Robinson Dickey and when the troop of Jacks, Jills, Little Red Riding Hoods and Little Boy Blues emerge from a tiny door in the huge shoe, the effect is instantaneous and far beyond the wildest dreams of Mother Goose in her prime.

This and the remaining of the 22 scenes in the two-act production once again scored heavily at the Tuesday night performance as Director Wallace Milam, of New York, continued to send his charges through spectacular singing and dancing numbers and comedy sketches in a manner which would do credit to any stage. The opening performance Monday night which was run off on schedule time to the very minute proved to be little short of a sensation and improvement to even higher standards of perfection is expected during the week. There will be performances at 8:30 o'clock each night this week with a matinee at 2:30 o'clock Saturday afternoon. The box office remains open daily from 10 o'clock until 8:30 with the price ranging from 50 cents to $2.50. Especial attention is called to the fact that there are 1,000 good seats at $1.

Cinderella Contest Conducted at Rich's

Everyone knows of the story book Cinderella's good fortune in possessing the smallest pair of feet, but now comes Rich's shoe department with a reward, maybe not quite as permanent, but certainly an enjoyable one, for the woman who purchases the smallest pair of slippers each day this week, through Thursday. In co-operation with the Fox theater, Rich's shoe department is giving two passes to see "Jazz Cinderella" on the stage and Jack Oakie in "Hit the Deck" on the screen at the Fox theater this week to the woman buying the smallest pair of slippers each day. Monday the winner was Mrs. L. R. Davis, 311 Decatur road, and yesterday Mrs. H. M. Hicks, Columbus, Ga., was fitted with the smallest slippers during the day. Two more days remain in this unique contest.

Carolina Debaters Meet Emory Tonight

Settle, of Emory, emphatically differ. Disarmament will be discussed here on Friday night by Robert Elliott and William B. Spann, of the Emory varsity, with Birmingham-Southern debaters furnishing the opposition.

Near Riot in Tower Ended by Tear Bombs

How an incipient riot of negro prisoners at Fulton tower was averted Sunday night with the aid of tear bombs was revealed Tuesday. Jail officials said that more than 60 negro prisoners in the "fourth west" wing of the tower refused to go into their cells at bed time. Efforts of jail employes to force the prisoners into their cells met for a time with defiance. Small tear gas cartridges were employed when all other means of persuasion failed, but the negroes only laughed at the small quantities of gas released by the cartridges, it was said. Larger tear bombs then were introduced, and, within a few seconds, the corridor was cleared and all of the prisoners were in their cells, safe from the billowing gas, which had the corridor all to itself.

These are the white, yellow and black. I hold that a Filipino is of the yellow or Mongolian race."

I was weak and had poor appetite and a bottle of this tonic gave me strength and helped me in every way. I regained my strength and became my normal self again. As a general tonic I could not if I tried praise the 'Discovery' too highly."—Theodore Kelly, 343 Chappel St., Atlanta, Ga.

'Christless Poets, Sophists, Cynics,' Scored by Dr. Covert

Lecture Assails "Intellectual Anarchists, Blase Philosophers and Vociferous Vandals."

DECATUR, Ga., Feb. 25.—"A school of clever cynics and sophists, a cult of intellectual anarchists, vociferous and vainglorious vandals, blase philosophers, novelists, magicians, critics has appeared in America since the World War, betraying our sacred inheritance," said Dr. William Chalmers Covert, of Philadelphia, Pa., general secretary of the Presbyterian board of Christian education, tonight at Columbia Theological seminary, renewing his attack upon what he asserts are the errors and evils of the age, in the series of lectures on "Christ and Culture," under the Thomas Smyth Foundation.

Secretary Covert related cases of what he called the moral insolvency of an intellectually great man, the highest of whose achievements was accompanied by profound sorrow. He asserted that these were "Christless poets, great literary lights whose glory was forever shadowed by their scorn of the moralities and of the spiritual values of Christianity. He spoke of a Godless world mock the highest aspirations of man. Without Christ the total gifts of the world's most gifted men in every realm of human accomplishment would be a blinding light. Wanting God, any civilization or culture will suppress the unfolding spiritual beauty and power of human life."

"The noble temples and academies of a Godless world mock the highest aspirations of man. Without Christ the total gifts of the world's most gifted men in every realm of human accomplishment would be a blinding light. Wanting God, any civilization or culture will suppress the unfolding spiritual beauty and power of human life."

Tonorrow night Secretary Covert will discuss the culture concepts in the life and thought of Christ in contrast with the dominant ideals of His times, and will compare them with conditions of today.

Blazing Meteorite Strikes Young Man Near Hahira, Ga.

HAHIRA, Ga., Feb. 25.—J. F. Horn, a farmer living five miles east of Hahira, in what is known as the King's Chapel neighborhood, reports a phenomenal incident. His 18-year-old son was plowing in a field about one-quarter of a mile from the Horn home and the father was sitting on the front porch of his dwelling talking with a neighbor. Mr. Horn and his guest heard a peculiar noise—a noise made by something going rapidly through the air. As it faded away, they wondered what it could be.

This happened near the noon hour and when the son failed to come up for dinner at the accustomed time, the father went out into the field to see what could be the matter. They found young Horn lying on the ground in a semi-conscious state, with a burn on his chest in the chest section of the garment. As soon as the son recovered sufficiently they helped him to his feet and he told of his experience as follows: He was plowing, had gotten to the end of the row and was turning iron and it also made a sound of a positive direction when he heard and saw a fiery missile, coming toward him at a terrific speed. It was too near to dodge and struck him a glancing blow on the chest. After that he knew nothing further, until the two men came to him.

Polish Hero of Civil War Dies at Augusta Tuesday

Colonel Arthur Grabowski, a Polish count who came to America because he disliked army life and then spent 50 years in military service, including officer in charge of supplies for the Confederate army, died here today at the age of 94. Death was caused by pneumonia.

Born in Russia in 1836, the son of Count Stanislaw Grabowski, Grabowski was educated in the Russian Military academy in St. Petersburg, now Leningrad, and the Royal College of Agriculture in Potsdam, Prussia. Deciding he preferred the then peaceful America to the army, he came to the United States at the age of 20 and started teaching in Roanoke college.

LOWER UTILITY RATES GOAL OF ASSOCIATION

AUGUSTA, Ga., Feb. 25.—(P)—A legislative program to reduce gas and electric light rates over the state will be outlined before the Municipal Utilities Rate Association of Georgia in Macon next Tuesday by its chairman, William H. Lester, he announced today.

The association, which is composed of officials of several Georgia cities, also plans to employ an expert "to present the people's side of all cases before the public service commission," Mr. Lester said. He said: "The state is pretty well controlled by three powerful utility groups—the Georgia Power Company, the Central Bell Telephone Company, and the Southern Bell Telephone Company"—which had "hired propaganda agencies paid for out of the pockets of the very people they are oppressing."

His Own Story of His Death.

Colonel Grabowski only recently had finished his own story of his death, leaving a blank space for insertion of the date after he died. He requested that the Augusta Chronicle publish the article as he had written it, and the request will be granted in Wednesday morning's edition of the paper. Among things he said: "I was a naturalized American citizen, the colonel never used his hereditary title in this country, valuing far more the professional titles which were the results of personal achievement."

To Seek Legislation.

"We believe the public service commission should represent the people and aid in securing reasonable rates. This is not the situation now. We aim to seek legislation carrying out this idea, and also to have means of aiding the commission in this difficult task, which grows more complicated yearly as the public utilities expand into holding corporations and more holding corporations in which earnings and profits are shuffled back and forth with the agility of a chess piece."

Another objective of the association that Mr. Lester announced is a portion of the "service charge," a part of the rate schedule by which a flat rate is charged regardless of the amount of light or gas used. Mr. Lester described this charge as a "tax" and said the utilities collect as much revenue from it "as the whole state government or Georgia gets from all its sources of taxation. He said that "one of the main purposes of the association will be to abolish the service charge through legislative enactment, as this seems the only remedy at hand."

Appointed by L. Q. C. Lamar.

"During the first Confederate administration the colonel was appointed by the Hon. L. Q. C. Lamar, then secretary of the state, to the position of superintendent of the Indian Industrial school, Haskell Institute, at Lawrence, Ark., and subsequently to the position of superintendent of the United States bureau of labor and the United States general land office. Holding, in 1860, the position of commander of the main post of the United States Military Academy, he resigned that position and joined the South Carolina forces on Morris Island, Charleston harbor, before the fall of Fort Sumter. South Carolina Volunteers, commanded by Colonel Maxey Gregg. The colonel served during the war, mainly at general headquarters in Richmond, Va., where his linguistic attainments were availed of by the Confederate war and state departments."

Visited Europe as a Count.

In his latter years the colonel repeatedly visited Europe, where he was known as Arthur Edward Adolphus Count Grabowski, being the name of one of the branches of one of the oldest families of the Polish nobility, having representatives in Germany, Austria, Russia and Europe. A naturalized American citizen, the colonel never used his hereditary title in this country, valuing far more the professional titles which were the results of personal achievement.

Mentions Lee, Jackson, Johnston.

"In his military career, as well as in his civil life, he met many of the prominent men of the recent past. His personal reminiscences of Generals Robert E. Lee, Stonewall Jackson, Joseph E. Johnston and many distinguished leaders of the Confederate armies; his associates were Senators Hill, Brown, Vance, Morgan, etc., and friends of Alexander H. Stephens, L. Q. C. Lamar and others."

His Recollections Interesting.

"Recollections of Richmond and Washington official and social life often interested colonel's limited circle of personal friends. To the public the colonel cheerfully offered his services, being for years the secretary of the Richmond County Agricultural Society, a member of the Virginia Horse and the Cross-Country Riding Club; a contributor to the press on any subject deemed by him of benefit to the community."

Refers to His Marriage.

"He became early connected by marriage with the family of Colonel James Gardner and enjoyed the esteem and friendship of that large family connection. The colonel was an active and successful one and he often remarked that such results are mainly possible in a republic in the freedom permitted to the individual all times and under every circumstance to use every lawful opportunity for the advancement of personal effort."

Chinese Protest Film Showing Chinatown

SHANGHAI, Feb. 25.—(AP)—As a result of a rising tide of Chinese animosity against Harold Lloyd's talking motion picture, "Welcome Danger," the Paramount Corporation, distributors of the film in the orient, today withdrew the production from showings at local theaters.

The action followed a protest to the nationalist government against further presentation of the film in China by the Shanghai district kuomintang political party headquarters in response to students' demands. The Shanghai kuomintang members viewed the film as "subjecting the Chinese to ridicule, also comprising insult to the Chinese nation."

Monacans Hope For Agreement In Royal Dispute

MONTE CARLO, Monaco, Feb. 25.—(AP)—Monacan officialdom hopes and believes that domestic difficulties of the princely house may be settled without litigation in the French courts.

Mayor Eugene Marguet said today that although Princess Charlotte, daughter of the ruling Prince Louis, filed suit at Nice yesterday for separation from her husband, Prince Pierre, the matter probably never would go further.

He said he expected a civil family agreement in which Prince Pierre would hold the regency for his young son, Rainier. "I discussed the question with Prince Louis and believe it can be arranged satisfactorily," he said.

Meanwhile the entire army of 80, most of whom are captains, has been kept ready in barracks for instant action if the marital difficulties of the two should threaten to disturb the calm of the principality.

Prince Louis' bitterest detractors last evening that the prince was "eating such a fine lobster he couldn't be disturbed over state affairs."

FINANCIAL WRITERS ASKED TO CONFERENCE

TALLAHASSEE, Fla., Feb. 25.—(AP)—Roger Babson, statistician and economist, and Richard Edmonds, Baltimore publisher, have been extended special invitations to attend the tax conference to be held at Jacksonville, March 3, Governor Doyle E. Carlton announced today.

The Jacksonville meeting, called by the governor, will be held for the purpose of selecting a tax group to study taxation problems of the state, and to outline a method of procedure to meet the state's needs in that direction.

The governor said yesterday he had sent out invitations to county officials, club leaders, heads of various civic organizations and business interests to attend the conference.

In announcing the invitations to Babson and Edmonds, the governor said he regarded the former as one of the nation's best authorities on economic matters, and Edmonds as one who had long taken a great interest in the state's tax problems.

Gangsters Invade Chicago Hospital In Attempt To Kill Hoodlum

CHICAGO, Feb. 25.—(AP)—Gunmen flouting the police drive against criminals invaded the solitude of a hospital room last night and attempted to assassinate Frank McElrane, veteran gang leader, already wounded. They succeeded in sending three more bullets into the disabled gangster's body before he fought them off with a pistol he had hidden under his pillow.

An hour earlier Joseph Fallon, another gunman, died from bullet wounds inflicted during a gun fight with Detective John J. Ryan, who himself was slain.

A short time before that the body of Paul Perconti, a racketeer, was found buried in quick lime in a concrete grave dug in an abandoned barn in the Duneland east of Chicago.

These three effrays punctuate the civic campaign against crime which during the last two weeks saw 5,000 suspects rounded up in an intensive drive which aroused the Chicago Association of Commerce into creating a businessmen's crime commission and a $1,000,000 fund for combating the criminal.

McElrane, whom gangland knows as "the toughest," was shot as he lay already wounded on his bed in a private hospital room.

With his right leg in a cast and swung high with pulleys and weights, McElrane grabbed a revolver from beneath his pillow and fired back at his assailants as they fled into the corridor.

One of the assailants' bullets pierced McElrane's back; another his wrist and a third lodged in the right thigh.

As "Charles Miller," McElrane gained entrance to the hospital January 28, for treatment of a bullet wound, which he said he had accidentally inflicted.

While the nurse was out of the room last night, the gangster quietly slipped in. A fusillade broke the quietness, followed by screams of patients. McElrane's nurse, returning hurriedly down the corridor, found the door open and her patient groaning on the bed.

Police were called, but McElrane maintained he was "Miller" until recognized by detectives.

A search revealed the gangster's revolver under the pillow. It had been emptied, and bullet pits on the wall of the corridor opposite the door to McElrane's room indicated the battle he waged with his attackers.

Although once a partner in the flourishing South Side beer business of Joe Sattis, McElrane has been known as an ally of "Spike" O'Donnell and his gang.

This change of associates, police believe, was responsible for what they believe was an attempt on his life January 28. Failing then the rivals apparently believed they had McElrane at their mercy in his hospital room but they did not reckon with the revolver McElrane had hidden beneath his pillow.

Questioned in numerous slayings, McElrane was tried only once for murder in 1927, and then was acquitted of killing Thaddeus Fancher, a Crown Point, Ind., attorney, in a roadside brawl.

The same year while still allied with Sattis, McElrane was dismissed on charges involving the slaying of three members of the O'Donnell gang. Gangland custom always has decreed a private room when hospital care is needed, a room far away from strategic aids and enemies such as fire escapes. McElrane's room was one of such.

COLUMBIA, S. C., Feb. 25.—(AP)—South Carolina's $85,000,000 highway bond act, apparently upheld by the United States supreme court yesterday, will be attacked again in the state supreme court, Representative Olin D. Johnston, of Spartanburg, said here today.

Representative Johnston said that plans are being made to carry a second appeal of the case to the state supreme court on the grounds that the obligations of bondholders under the old reimbursement plan of highway building will be impaired by the issuance of highway bonds under the act of 1929.

The action will be taken by certain persons holding bonds under the reimbursement plan.

BLONDE BANDIT'S 'PAL' WILL PLEAD GUILTY

BUFFALO, N. Y., Feb. 25.—(AP)—With Peter Lombard's announcement that he would plead guilty to burglary charges, Sally Joyce Richards, alias Mabel Packer, formerly of Toronto, and said to have been the blonde bandit involved in a series of Buffalo hold-ups, faced trial alone today. She is charged specifically with carrying a gun in a daring jewelry store hold-up.

Eddie Lyndorck, the girl's other companion, already has pleaded guilty. The girl, who, with a few exceptions, has maintained an indifferent air since her capture in Alabama with her two companions, appeared in court today smartly dressed.

In the Glickstein robbery jewels worth $20,000, the jeweler's entire stock, were stolen.

News of the indictments, which had been returned secretly, became known today when arrangements were made to arraign the defendants this afternoon.

The corporations include the Standard Oil Company of New York, the Sinclair Refining Company, the Beacon Oil Company and the Cities Service Refining Company. Judge John M. Gibbs, of the superior court, was to preside at the arraignment.

Chinese Slain

LOS ANGELES, Feb. 25.—(AP)—Three Chinese, each slain by blows which crushed the skull, were found in a deserted ranch house near here today. After a preliminary examination police said they could not determine whether robbery, or an outbreak of war between Chinese gangs was the motive of the assassinations.

Indian Alligator Wrestler To Marry Amid Gala Throng

MIAMI, Fla., Feb. 25.—(AP)—Attended by all the color and ceremony of Seminole tribal custom, Henry Billy, Indian alligator wrestler, and Annie John, daughter of a medicine man, will be united in marriage at the Musa Isle Indian village overlooking the Miami river tomorrow afternoon.

Henry Billy, known to braves at the Musa Isle village and his pale face associates, as Cowboy Bill, wooed Annie John in the fastnesses of the Everglades, the ceremonies tomorrow marking the first trip the Indian maiden has ever made to the city and civilization.

The simple ceremony will be conducted by a member of the bride's family following a white man's ritual, after which visiting Seminole braves and maidens will join in a wedding feast. The Seminole ceremony consists of the joining of hands of the bride's parent or member of her family to "be good, love each other and live together."

The Seminole marriage is one of the most solemn rites in the world, no divorce or separation being recognized. Any difficulties that may arise are taken before the bride's elders and the couple abides by whatever decision is handed down.

Braves and squaws will join in the wedding feast immediately following the ceremony with picturesque Seminole dances during the feasting, according to Indian lore handed down from generation to generation. According to Seminole tradition, Henry Billy and his bride will set out in a canoe at dawn the following morning for a wedding trip in the Everglades. They plan to return later to Musa Isle, where Billy will carry out his alligator wrestling activities.

Henry Billy, or Cowboy Bill, has learned that wrestling with the saurian is a more profitable business than hunting them for their skins, and those at Musa Isle said, as soon as he saw he was able to provide for a wife, he went into the Everglades, where he wooed and won Annie John. Under tribal custom the bride will not see Henry Billy until the actual ceremonies, now that he has satisfied her parents he is able to care for her and will take her as his bride.

In wrestling alligators Henry Billy provides thrills for those who desire something of the unusual and makes his livelihood by faking collections or appearing at special events. He leaps from his canoe upon a large gator, striving to turn the saurian on its back, at the same time striving to keep clear of the rapidly swishing tail, chief weapon of the alligator. The methods vary, sometimes the wrestler turns the saurian on its back and forces open its jaws, showing long rows of teeth, and at other times he remains content in rolling over his usually unwilling adversary.

Deviating from the usual custom, Miami and winter visitors in this section have been invited to attend the marriage and ceremonies following.

Advent of Natural Gas Here Observed at Brilliant Dinner

300 Guests Hear Coming of New Fuel Lauded as Great Step Forward.

The advent of natural gas to the Atlanta territory was seen as the greatest step toward continued industrial development of the past two decades at a dinner Tuesday night at which industrial leaders of the east and middle west joined with those of Georgia in celebrating the arrival of the new fuel.

Upward of 300 guests attended the dinner, which was tendered officials of the Southern Natural Gas Corporation, of Chicago, in behalf of the Southern Cities Public Service Company and the Atlanta Gas Light Company.

"The officials of the Southern Natural Gas Corporation are responsible for one of the greatest events for this section of the past 20 to 50 years," James A. Perry, chairman of the Georgia public service commission, declared.

One of the greatest benefits which Atlanta will receive from the use of natural gas, Mr. Perry declared, is the partial elimination of the smoke nuisance in the city.

R. C. Hoffman, Jr., vice president of the Southern Cities Public Service Company, a division of the Central Public Service Corporation, was toastmaster.

A graphic picture of expansions in the natural gas industry was painted by Colonel Albert E. Pierce, of Chicago, president of the Central Public Service Corporation, the holding company behind the development.

He outlined a great circle of gas mains reaching from the Louisiana gas field to the Great Lakes, east to

New York and southward along the Atlantic seaboard. This great network of pipe lines will be connected with by-product gas manufacturing plants, by which the supply of natural gas will be augmented, he said.

"The growth of the natural gas developments is greater in prospect than the growth of the electric business in the period between 1900 and 1920, the greatest of their history," Colonel Pierce stated.

Property of $300,000,000. The company which he heads, he said, has property valued at $300,000,000. It has 40,000 stockholders, and operates a greater number of gas companies than any other holding company.

The completion of the gas main from the Louisiana fields to Atlanta, he characterized as "an American event," and declared, "You are fortunate that Atlanta can retain all the advantages of its geographical situation and yet draw to it from a distance of almost half a thousand miles the one natural resource which it lacked."

"Had not the men behind this project had implicit confidence in the future of the south," he declared, "they would not have invested their capital in it."

Other Speakers.

Mayor I. N. Ragsdale, who welcomed the officials of the gas companies to Atlanta, E. C. Deal, of New York, president of the People's Light and Power Company, and Robert F. Maddox, of the First National bank, completed the program of speakers.

Mr. Deal, who began his career in Atlanta, recounted his early experiences with the Atlanta gas light system.

"We will be under everlasting obligations to the capitalists who have brought this development to us," Mr. Maddox declared.

SENATE TACKLES FREE LIST TODAY

Ready for Major Items After Disposing of Individual Problems.

BY D. HAROLD OLIVER, Associated Press Staff Writer.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 25.—(AP)—

The senate completed action today on virtually all individual amendments to the tariff bill's rate sections and paved the way for a renewal tomorrow of many major contests over articles on the free list, which certain senators would make dutiable.

Chairman Smoot, of the finance committee, announced after the day's session that he expected the free list to be reached tomorrow, and that previous votes denying duties on hides, leather, shoes, shingles and lumber would be opened to reconsideration instead of waiting for the bill to be returned to the senate from committee on the whole.

An agreement was reached during the day to consider on Friday proposals for a tariff on crude oil and refined petroleum products, including gasoline, which are advocated by independent oil producers. These commodities also are now on the free list.

Nine amendments to the silk, paper and books and sundries schedules were adopted today, and two were rejected.

Senator Blaine, republican independent, won approval of an amendment to restore the present duty on leather goods now in force, in it would take all kinds not specifically mentioned in the bill. The measure proposed an increase to 65 per cent.

The Wisconsin senator also had approved an amendment to cut the bill increases on silk pile fabrics known as velvets, but allowing for higher levies now in force, in it would take the wholly cut or wholly uncut pile fabrics dutiable at 65 per cent instead of 70 per cent as in the house bill and 60 per cent at present.

The partly cut fabrics would be dutiable at 70 per cent instead of 75 and 60 per cent, respectively in the bill and present law.

Blaine lost, 40 to 37, a third proposal to eliminate a 5 per cent increase in the existing duty of 60 per cent on all manufactures of silk not specifically provided for.

An amendment by Senator George, democrat, Georgia, to restore the present rate of 45 per cent on bleached, dyed, colored or printed silk yarns was approved, 36 to 35. The bill proposed 50 per cent.

Senator Copeland, democrat, New York, obtained unanimity to return to cotton and had approved an increase in duty on cotton shirts not knit or crocheted from 35 to 45 per cent as against the bill's 50 per cent.

He lost, however, an amendment to raise existing rates on unhemmed and hemmed silk handkerchiefs and mufflers which the bill does not change. Other amendments approved were:

By Senator Fletcher, democrat, Florida, to raise the rate on sponges of the sheepskin type from 15 to 40 per cent. The bill provided 25 per cent.

By Senator Vandenberg, republican, Michigan, to make crude beeswax, now free, dutiable at 25 per cent, or the same as bleached beeswax.

By Senator Walsh, democrat, Massachusetts, to make paper, transparently printed lithographically or otherwise in not over five printings dutiable at 20 per cent, as against 40 per cent in the bill and 25 cents a pound in existing law, and transparently in more than five printings dutiable at 25 per cent instead of 50 per cent in the bill and 25 cents a pound at present.

By Senator Thomas, democrat, Oklahoma, to except from the bill increases from 40 to 60 per cent on pipe organs; those organs made on special order and not of the stock variety.

By Senator Johnson, republican, California, providing that exported books of domestic manufacture, when returned to the United States after having been advanced in value or improved in condition by any process of manufacture or other means, shall under rules and regulations prescribed by the secretary of the treasury be dutiable only on the cost of materials added and labor performed in a foreign country.

The precautions invoked by the leaders were far beyond those of many parents printed lithographically or otherwise in not over five printings dutiable at 20 per cent, as against 40 per cent in the bill and 25 cents a pound in existing law, and transparently in more than five printings dutiable at 25 per cent instead of 50 per cent in the bill and 25 cents a pound at present.

Watson said he could offer no explanation for the unusual warnings to senators to remain out of the chamber. He said he thought the unemployment situation might have something to do with them.

"Every time the water is stirred up like this, the light chips come to the top," he said. He believed the disarranged papers in the offices of senators might be traced to janitors.

Despite Watson's assurances that the scare is now over many senators have not relaxed their vigilance in looking behind them when they move about the capitol.

Threats of Bombing Cause Increase in Senate Guard

"Spies" Recently Complained of Prove Secret Service Men Detailed To Protect Senators.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 25.—(UN)—

A new squad of plainclothesmen has been gunshooting around the senate wing of the capitol and all but one of the entrances have been locked because of a bomb scare and fears of senators that they were being followed by prohibition agents.

The story of the double espionage was told today by the Republican Floor Leader James E. Watson, who announced he had made an exhaustive investigation and had come to the conclusion that the fears of senators were without foundation.

Three senators received letters advising them it would be well for them to remain out of the senate chamber for a few weeks. Two senators found their offices ransacked and papers misplaced. Several other senators received private information that dry sleuths were following them around to see if they observed the prohibition laws, and a few feet away from the chamber.

Watson revealed, in confirming an exclusive United News dispatch of today, that he directed the capitol police to take extreme precautions and start an investigation of his own. His office attaches were so aroused that, unbeknown to Watson, they established a plainclothes guard outside of his office, a few feet away from the senate chamber.

"The matter reached such a stage the suggestion was made that we put two hundred gallons of water in the senate chamber to drop the bombs in if they were hurled from the galleries," Watson said.

The leader was inclined to believe that there had been any spying on senators by prohibition agents, it has ceased. These reports had their origin in the recent arrest of George H. Cassidy, "the man in the green hat" charged with being a senatorial boot-legger. He was captured outside the senate office building by prohibition agents, and it was then developed that the capitol grounds, which are officially a government reservation, were not immune to investigation by prohibition authorities.

About the same time Senator Borah, republican, Idaho, and Senator Wheeler, democrat, Montana, complained that their offices in the senate office building were being watched. Attorney-General Mitchell then announced his agents were not a part to any such procedure, which he characterized as "unthinkable."

Senate officials proceeded with the utmost caution in establishing their system of security, and determined if they were being followed by prohibition men. Sergeant-at-Arms David S. Barry emphatically denied late yesterday a statement given to the United News a short time before to the effect that he had started a detective squad of plainclothesmen. Although he was in charge of the squad he also denied he had heard any threats against senators.

The precautions invoked by the leaders were far beyond those of many parents printed lithographically or otherwise in not over five printings dutiable at 20 per cent, as against 40 per cent in the bill and 25 cents a pound in existing law, and transparently in more than five printings dutiable at 25 per cent instead of 50 per cent in the bill and 25 cents a pound at present.

Watson said he could offer no explanation for the unusual warnings to senators to remain out of the chamber. He said he thought the unemployment situation might have something to do with them.

"Every time the water is stirred up like this, the light chips come to the top," he said. He believed the disarranged papers in the offices of senators might be traced to janitors.

Despite Watson's assurances that the scare is now over many senators have not relaxed their vigilance in looking behind them when they move about the capitol.

Begins Life Term For Stealing Dress

AUBURN, N. Y., Feb. 25.—(AP)—

Mrs. Ruth St. Clair, who since she was 13 floated the law in a score of ways, according to records of the New York correctional agencies, began a life sentence at Auburn prison as a habitual criminal today.

Mrs. St. Clair was convicted four times for stealing. The life sentence brought a flood of opposition to the fourth-offender law, which makes a life sentence mandatory for every person convicted of four felonies. Mrs. St. Clair's offenses were mostly shoplifting.

About the time the wave of protest was at its height the official record of the young woman was made public. This showed that efforts had been made numerous times to aid her and that each time she received help she went back to her former ways.

Carolina Woman Official Resigns

RALEIGH, N. C., Feb. 25.—(AP)—

The only woman state official in the history of North Carolina, Mrs. Kate Burr Johnson, commissioner of public welfare, resigned today to become superintendent of the New Jersey State Home for Girls at Trenton.

Her resignation was presented to the board of charities and public welfare at a called meeting held today at Seagfield, near Greensboro.

Mrs. Johnson was elected to office in 1921, being the first woman in the United States to head a state department of public welfare. She had achieved prominence in welfare work in the state. In 1917 she was president of the North Carolina Federation of Women's Clubs. President Hoover in 1920 appointed Mrs. Johnson chairman of the White House conference on child health and protection.

Admits 10 Murders, Indicted for One

NEW YORK, Feb. 25.—(AP)—

The first indictment for any of the ten murders which James Baker, 23, told police he committed, was returned today by the February grand jury in the case of Henry Graw, laboratory night watchman, a year ago last December.

The indictment will be handed up to Judge Morris Koenig tomorrow in general sessions court.

The calmness with which Baker has confessed to murder after murder, most of which police could not find in the records, led them to doubt his sanity. So District Attorney Thomas C. T. Crain called in two alienists. They found him sane.

LEGGE SEEKS SUPPORT IN WHEAT PRICE CRISIS

Appeal for Aid From Businessmen Follows Talk With Hoover.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 25.—(AP)—

After a conference with President Hoover, Chairman Legge, of the farm board, called upon the "conservative businessmen of the country" tonight to support the board's efforts to stabilize wheat prices.

"Some objection," he said, "has developed in the grain trade against the action of the farm board in financing farm co-operatives in the purchase of wheat and cotton in the present situation. These activities will continue in the interest of agriculture and business as an emergency measure in the present situation. I have no fear that the co-operatives will not be able to eventually market these purchases satisfactorily."

"In connection with these objections I should like to make this statement as a conservative businessman, and as a member of the conservative business of the country.

"The country as a whole was thrown into depression through the collapse of speculation in the New York Stock Exchange. The farmer also was a victim of this collapse. The board is endeavoring, through finance of the farmers' own organizations, to help restore stability and expedite recovery from a crisis which the farmer did not create and for which he is not responsible."

"The measures taken are purely emergency measures in part with those taken by other business agencies of the country, and I am confident that the board deserves and will receive the support of all thinking businessmen in its effort to contribute its part toward the swift recovery of the country as a whole from this situation. The grain trade in particular is interested in the maintenance of stability and the board earnestly hopes for their co-operation in the measures now being taken for restoration of the grain markets."

The chairman's statement preceded a press conference at which he amplified remarks he made on Monday in connection with the board's activities and which were blamed today by traders in Chicago for a new break in wheat prices. He had said the board's primary interest was in protecting co-operatives and that none of them had lost in the market slump.

Boycott Approved.

MANILA, Feb. 25.—(AP)—

A boycott of all American and other foreign firms that oppose Philippine independence was proposed in a resolution unanimously adopted today by the labor section of the Philippine Independence Congress, which is holding sessions to promote the islands' freedom.

EX-KING WELCOMED BY MUSTAPHA KEMAL

ISTANBUL, Feb. 25.—(AP)—

There was a dramatic meeting this morning at the Ankara railway station between Mustapha Kemal, the shah, and Amanullah, former king of Afghanistan. Amanullah's face streamed with tears as he embraced Kemal, imitation of whose modernizing program cost him his throne.

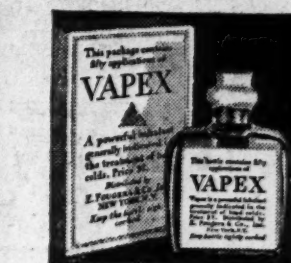

Amanullah told reporters he was ready to return to Afghanistan in any humble capacity but he maintained this visit to the shah was merely prompted by the desire to see a dear old friend.

Kiwanis President McDavid Honored by Local Members

International Head and Wife Honor Guests at Inter-Club Dinner-Dance at Druid Hills Club.

Refreshed after a visit to Atlanta, Horace W. McDavid, of Decatur, Ill., international president of Kiwanis, this morning will leave for Florida to convalesce from a recent illness. In Mr. McDavid's party will be Mrs. McDavid and Mr. and Mrs. Henry C. Heinz.

Mr. and Mrs. McDavid were the honor guests Tuesday night at an inter-club dinner-dance at the Druid Hills Golf Club. More than 250 members and guests from 19 Georgia clubs were present, including members of the club which is being organized at Marietta.

After an introduction by Mr. Heinz, who is a past president of Kiwanis International, Mr. McDavid told the Kiwanians and their guests that the great social problems of the world are not solved by force but by love. He urged the Kiwanians to put their ideas into the realm of practical results and urged the group to do unselfish service for the good of mankind. Speaking of the need of leadership in the world today, he declared that Kiwanis will help men to find the true highway of life through its program.

Joe Shaw, president of the Atlanta club, acted as toastmaster. Floyd Jennings, secretary of the local club, sang several numbers, and Forest Traylor entertained with accordion selections. Ed Kneisel and his Billerians furnished dance music. Arthur Falkenburg, club song leader, kept up the gathering with community singing.

W. B. Gibbs, of Jessup, governor of the Georgia district, introduced his lieutenant-governors, Fred Stone, chairman of the international good-will and grievance committee, made a short speech in which he welcomed the international president to Atlanta and Georgia.

The Jackson Kiwanis Club, whose members will entertain the state convention September 10, 11 and 12, sent the largest, out-of-town delegation to the meeting. Twenty-one members of the Jackson club were present.

MADRID, Feb. 25.—(P)—It was learned today that the "affair of honor" between Miguel de Rivera, son of a former dictator, and Captain Rexach, Spanish aviator, has been postponed but not settled.

The trouble arose when Miguel de Rivera took exception to remarks made by Captain Rexach concerning the elder Primo de Rivera. The posthumous honor has been caused by the exile from Spain of the son of the ousted dictator.

The seconds for the parties concerned, it has been disclosed, have made arrangements for a saber duel, probably to be in France.

The program was one of a series, sponsored by the Westinghouse company, based on great industries.

William A. Thomson, director of the bureau of advertising of the American Newspaper Publishers' Association, who addressed the radio audience, said the newspaper "comes as near to being all things to all men and all women as any human institution can be."

Mr. Thomson described the scope of the modern newspaper, saying that it is not hard to see that Will Rogers claims a liberal education when he confesses that all he knows is what he reads in the papers.

The "voice" which acted as master of ceremonies for the program paid tribute to the "thousands of news-

gathers, who "every day brave weariness, discomfort and danger."

"A Russell Owen immures himself in an antarcctic camp—William Curtis risks the loss of his liberty—a Philip Payne dares to start on a trans-Atlantic flight which he knows may end in disaster—a Don Quixotte is ridden by the bullets of the underworld. These men are heroes in the name of the truth."

The program was one of a series, sponsored by the Westinghouse company, based on great industries.

William A. Thomson, director of the bureau of advertising of the American Newspaper Publishers' Association, who addressed the radio audience, said the newspaper "comes as near to being all things to all men and all women as any human institution can be."

Mr. Thomson described the scope of the modern newspaper, saying that it is not hard to see that Will Rogers claims a liberal education when he confesses that all he knows is what he reads in the papers.

The "voice" which acted as master of ceremonies for the program paid tribute to the "thousands of news-

Florida Leaders Study Return of Democrats

TALLAHASSEE, Fla., Feb. 25.—(P)—While preliminary political talk is going the rounds regarding the effect this year's Florida elections will have upon those who bolted the democratic ticket in 1928 and voted for Herbert Hoover, Attorney-General Fred H. Davis, in an opinion given today, suggested ways and means by which those who left the democratic camp may return with discretion.

In his opinion sent to a Clearwater attorney, Mr. Davis said candidates for office in the democratic primaries are required to make oath that they did not vote for the nominees of any other party, national, state or county at the last general election and that similar oath may by challenge be required of the voters themselves.

However, Mr. Davis continued, after declaring that whatever applies to candidates also applies to voters, "neither the clerk of the circuit court nor the secretary of state would have the legal right to question the veracity of candidates who take the oath, and that after it is taken it becomes a political matter for the voters."

Objectives of the future farmers of America were described as a move "to create more interest in the intelligent choice of farming occupations; to create and nurture a love of country life; to encourage recreational and educational activities; to promote thrift; to encourage co-operative effort; to strengthen the confidence of the farm boy in himself and his work; to develop rural leadership, and to promote scholarship."

OAKLAND

The OAKLAND-PONTIAC COMPANY of Atlanta

as Oakland-Pontiac Dealer

FORMAL OPENING FEB. 26th and 27th

Illustrated above is our Salesroom located at 425 Spring St., N. W.

THE Oakland Motor Car Company takes pleasure in announcing the appointment of the Oakland-Pontiac Company of Atlanta as Oakland-Pontiac dealer.

This appointment, which becomes effective with the formal opening to be held at the showroom, 425 Spring Street, N. W., on February 26th and 27th, is an event of the utmost importance to Atlanta's motorists.

The Oakland-Pontiac Company of Atlanta is a new organization, led by an executive personnel of unusual ability and experience.

The President and General Manager is Mr. J. G. Davies who has long been identified with the sale and servicing of General Motors products.

Cooperating with him in the management of this new enterprise will be the following:

Mr. Hugh Galloway—Sales Manager
Mr. W. M. Bommershine—Service Manager
Mr. H. T. Meyer—Office Manager
Mr. N. J. Miller—Used Car Manager

Each of these men, like the directing head of the organization, brings to his new task a fund of experience and special training that will be reflected in service of exceptional efficiency.

And when you visit their showroom and service station during the formal opening, February 26th and 27th, you will find additional assurance of the complete motoring satisfaction which such service makes possible to owners. New service facilities have been provided. New tool equipment is being installed. The latest factory methods of servicing Oakland and Pontiac cars have been adopted. The new Owner Service Policy is in effect. And the entire building has been remodeled and redecorated, so that the Oakland-Pontiac Company of Atlanta has one of the finest equipped automobile sales and service plants in the South.

You are cordially invited to attend the Formal Opening and see this splendid plant. There will be flowers for the ladies, souvenirs for their escorts and toys for the children, too. Music also will be a feature of this interesting event. And while you are our guests you can inspect the New Oakland Eight and the New Series Pontiac Big Six.

The New Oakland Eight—the car with superior performance—is General Motors' newest and lowest-priced 8-cylinder car. Its engine develops 85 horsepower, making Oakland the first stock car of its size and weight to use an engine of such high power. It has a full down-draft fuel system and new two-plane cylinder head—a short, rigid, fully counterweighted crankshaft—full pressure lubrication—crankcase ventilation—and many other features which combine to produce superior performance in a car of moderate price.

The New Series Pontiac Big Six—a finer car with a famous name—includes all of the big car qualities which made past Pontiacs so widely popular. In addition, it offers many important improvements. Its big, powerful, 60-horsepower L-head engine is now smoother than ever because of new-type rubber engine mountings which insulate the engine from the frame. Improved brakes, a sloping non-glare windshield, Lovejoy Hydraulic Shock Absorbers at no extra cost, and many other features make this newest Pontiac a finer value than ever.

Don't forget the dates! February 26th and 27th. And don't fail to take advantage of this opportunity to get acquainted with the splendid new organization whose service is now available to Atlanta's car owners.

The New Oakland Eight, $1045 and up. The New Series Pontiac Big Six, $745 and up, f. o. b. Pontiac, Michigan, plus delivery charges. General Motors Time Payment Plan available at minimum rate.

Woman's Club

Served March 4

An oyster dinner will be served at the Atlanta Woman's Club Tuesday evening, March 4, at 6 o'clock in the banquet hall, which will be artistically decorated in spring flowers, and the program will be most entertaining. Tempting side dishes will be served in connection with the oysters and entire family groups will be the guests of the club on that occasion. Mrs. Clifford A. Collins, general chairman of arrangements, and Miss Mary Carey, co-chairman, who have been so successful in launching affairs of this sort in this city, have the assurance of friends in the club circles that this affair will be one of the biggest and best they have yet attempted. Assisting Mrs. Collins and Miss Carey will be the members of the house committee, as follows: Mesdames Irving S. Thomas, Lucian McConnell, Alonzo Richardson, E. V. Carter, D. R. Wilder, George L. Turner, Earl F. Scott, Maude K. Jacobs and George S. Obeir. Mrs. Harry G. Poole, chairman of finance, will also be among those assisting on this occasion.

Many requests for an affair of this kind have been made to the president, Mrs. John R. Hornady, from the "club husbands" since the date of the barbecue last fall, and now that plans for this long anticipated event have been perfected the chairmen request that the entire membership aid them by arranging to dine at the club on Tuesday evening, March 4, and suggest that they bring the entire family, some friends and neighbors with them. Private parties may be arranged at no additional expense per plate. Reservation books are now open and Mrs. T. E. Simmons, hostess at the club, will take orders over the phone for as many reservations as the members care to make, and it is desirable that this be done at an early date as a large number of guests are expected. A special arrangement with the merchants makes it possible for the club to serve this tempting menu at 50 cents per plate.

Athletic Club Is Scene of Dance.

A dinner-dance will be given at the Atlanta Athletic Club Saturday evening, March 1. A well-known dance orchestra will provide the music.

WHILE AMERICA WAS BENDING EVERY EFFORT TO PRODUCE VAST QUANTITIES OF FOODSTUFFS AND MUNITIONS FOR THE ALLIES, THE UNITED STATES GOVERNMENT WAS SEEKING TO GATHER ENOUGH MERCHANTMEN TO CARRY THESE SUPPLIES TO EUROPE.

IMMEDIATELY UPON OUR DECLARATION OF WAR THE GOVERNMENT ADDED MATERIALLY TO THE AVAILABLE TONNAGE BY SEIZING ALL GERMAN SHIPS THAT HAD BEEN INTERNED IN AMERICAN PORTS. AMONG THE SHIPS SEIZED WERE A NUMBER OF GREAT LINERS WHICH LATER RENDERED VALUABLE SERVICE AS TRANSPORTS.

THE GOVERNMENT COMMANDEERED ALL SHIPS OVER A CERTAIN SIZE THAT WERE BEING BUILT IN AMERICAN SHIPYARDS, AND MANY OTHER VESSELS WERE PURCHASED OR CHARTERED. IT WAS ALSO PLANNED TO CONSTRUCT HUNDREDS OF MERCHANTMEN.

Mrs. Robert L. Cooney To Address
State Garden Club, March 25-26

Mrs. Robert L. Cooney, president of the Peachtree Garden Club, will speak on "Old Gardens of Georgia" at the annual meeting of the Garden Club of Georgia to be held March 25-26 in Thomasville, the president, Mrs. Joseph Speer, of Augusta, presiding. The lecture, which will be illustrated with colored stereoscopic views, will include outstanding old colonial gardens in various sections of the state. The individuality and charm of some of the beauty spots of Georgia will be described in detail by Mrs. Cooney, who, as president of the Peachtree club for many years, has acquired a thorough and comprehensive knowledge of Georgia gardens and flowers.

The Garden Club of Georgia was organized in 1928 with a view to the cultivation and protection of plants and flowers and the promotion of worthwhile garden projects throughout the state. The last meeting of the club was held in Augusta, Mrs. Phineas Culhoun, past president, presiding. The organization of the club has inspired formation of a number of smaller clubs throughout the state.

Officers of the club are Mesdames Joseph Speer, of Augusta, president; Robert L. Cooney, of Atlanta, honorary president; Malcolm Fleming, first vice president; Frank Chisholm, of Savannah, second vice president; Thomas Barry, of Rome, third vice president; W. T. Roberts, of Fairburn, recording secretary; W. E. Houston, of Augusta, corresponding secretary; Randolph Jaques, of Macon, treasurer.

BURGESS CHILDREN'S STORIES

REDDY FOX PROVES HIS WISDOM.

By Thornton W. Burgess.
Be not too bold, it doesn't pay.
The wise will sometimes run away.
—Reddy Fox.

Reddy Fox was hungry. He was very hungry. It seemed to him that he could eat almost anything. So perhaps you can guess how he felt as he lay hidden under a hemlock tree and knew that only a little way from him, under another little hemlock tree, was a young Owl. "An old Owl might be tough," thought Reddy. "I guess it would be tough. But a young Owl like that one there couldn't possibly be tough. I have never eaten Owl, but I am quite willing to try it. I guess I had better not make the attempt, however, while Hooty is around. Perhaps if I am a little patient Hooty will fly away and I can grab that little Owl and get away before Mrs. Hooty returns."

So Reddy lay right where he was and his mouth watered. It was all he could do to keep from springing to his feet and seizing that little Owl. He knew if he did it, however, that he would suffer for it. He had a great deal of respect for the great curved claws and the stout hooked bill of Hooty the Owl.

By and by Hooty spread his great wings and sailed away. Reddy waited a moment. Then he began to get to his feet. A moment later he settled back, however. You see, Mrs. Hooty had arrived. She had brought another mouse for that baby under the little hemlock tree. For a moment she stood there on the ground very straight and turned her head first one way, then the other, so rapidly that Reddy couldn't get away from the feeling that if she didn't stop she would twist her head off. Her great round eyes stared with a fierceness that made Reddy feel uncomfortable. He began to wonder if she suspected that he was hiding there. It made him uneasy. He began to wish that he was somewhere else.

In a moment Mrs. Hooty stopped looking about so suspiciously. The young Owl stretched his neck up and began to tease the mouse she had just brought. Mrs. Hooty fed the youngster. It seemed strange that so fierce a bird could show affection. Yet had you been there you would have seen at once that Mrs. Hooty loved this baby of hers and was very, very proud of it. Even Reddy realized this.

Right close by was a low shrub. Mrs. Hooty perched on this. Then she flew up for a look at the baby in the nest in the tree. Satisfied that this one was all right, she returned to the stump and there she mounted guard until Hooty returned. She waited while he fed the baby in the nest and then she in her turn went off hunting. Meanwhile Hooty remained on watch in a tree close by the nest. This sort of thing happened several times. Reddy Fox began to feel as if he were a prisoner. It wasn't going to be easy to get away without being seen by either Hooty or Mrs. Hooty. Somehow he didn't want to be seen. He had a feeling that if either one of those big birds should see him, he would be lucky indeed to get away with a whole skin.

However, at last he had an opportunity. Hooty left before Mrs. Hooty returned. The way was clear. Reddy took a good long look at the place where that little Owl was hiding. The

Invited to Pre-View.

All chairmen of the motion picture department of the Atlanta Parent-Teacher Council are invited to attend a preview of "A Trip Around the World" this morning at 9 o'clock at the Biako theater. "A Trip Around the World" is a Martin Johnson production and companion picture to "Sinhua." Some of the scenes were filmed on the trip to Africa when Mr. and Mrs. Johnson were accompanied by Atlanta's own Scout, Douglas Oliver, who is shown in the picture. The motion picture committee heartily indorses this type picture for its wonderful educational value and urges all chairmen of this department to attend the preview in order to take the message back to their associations, it being very desirable that as many children as possible see it.

temptation was very, very great. It would take but a moment to dart over there, seize that young Owl and race away with it. As I said before, Reddy was very hungry. He was almost on the point of darting after that Owl when he decided instead that he would take this chance to get away. It was a wise decision. It shows the wisdom that Reddy has in that shrewd head of his. He was not more than out of sight when Mrs. Hooty arrived and she certainly would have caught him had he tried to get that baby.

The Frigidaire
HYDRATOR

is the talk of the Cooking School

Attend the remaining classes...
See what the Hydrator does!

"It doesn't seem possible... almost like magic..." That's the kind of talk you hear among women attending the Cooking School. They are discussing the Hydrator... a new device now furnished with all new household Frigidaires as standard equipment.

Combines moisture with cold

The Frigidaire Hydrator is a new compartment of acid-resisting Porcelain-on-steel, with moist cold air inside. It provides an entirely new service.

The Famous "Frigidaire Cold Control"

It keeps fresh vegetables brittle and crisp for days on end. And even if celery, lettuce, tomatoes and other garden produce are wilted when delivered, the Hydrator quickly revives them.

Porcelain-on-steel cabinets with the "Cold Control"

In addition to the Hydrator, Frigidaire also offers the "Cold Control"... a simple patented device that supplies extreme cold for ice and frozen delicacies. And Frigidaire cabinets, built of rust-proof Porcelain-on-steel throughout, offer practical beauty as well as longer life. See the demonstration now being given at the Cooking School. Then call at our showroom for complete information. Come in at your first opportunity.

BECAUSE YOU LIKE GOOD

THINGS TO EAT —

That's enough reason for using Snowdrift. Because Snowdrift does make good things to eat... it makes the very best cakes and pies and light flaky biscuit that ever came out of an oven.

Not a bit surprising either, when you know that Snowdrift is made from the same fine oil we use for making Wesson Oil... that aristocrat of salad oils. Only, Snowdrift is whipped up firm and white to form the fluffiest of solid shortenings.

Foods fried in Snowdrift are especially crisp and brown and tender... with the rich "fried" taste that everybody likes.

Some time we would like to have you try Wesson Oil for making French Dressing and Mayonnaise. Its bland, pure goodness is without equal.

Ortiz Rubio Recovers Enough to Give Talk

MEXICO CITY, Feb. 25.—(AP)—President Pascual Ortiz Rubio, who until a few days ago could not talk because of the wound received in his jaw at his inauguration February 5, has recovered so far that he will speak over the radio Tuesday at 9 p. m. eastern standard time. The speech will be brief and of non-political character.

An easy way to overcome . . . Enlarged Pores and Blackheads

Are you shocked—and a trifle embarrassed—when a beauty expert tells you that enlarged pores are caused by dirt? Of course she does not imply that you fail to cleanse your skin often enough. She means that you do not cleanse it thoroughly—that modern life in dusty towns and cities calls for deep pore-cleansing that soap-and-water will not accomplish.

Plough's Cleansing Cream, made of light, non-absorbable oils offers a modern, easy way to cleanse the skin of all impurities which cause enlarged pores, blackheads and other blemishes. Pores which are thoroughly clear and free to breathe quickly contract to normal size; and regular use of this pure cream will keep the skin's texture smooth, clear and beautiful.

Tonight, before retiring, dip your fingers into the light, snowy softness of Plough's Cleansing Cream and smooth it generously on your skin. When you wipe it off, you will know that the beauty expert was right—and you will delight in the immaculate freshness and new beauty of complexion.

Capital's Ladies of Congress Seeking More 'Experience'

ALL BUT ONE OF FEMININE CONTINGENT SEEK RE-ELECTION
BY BESS FURMAN,
Associated Press Staff Writer.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 25.—(AP)—With many kettles on the boil, the "ladies of the house," with one exception, want to continue their legislative cookery in congress.

Mrs. Pearl Peden Oldfield, democrat, Arkansas, will not run for re-election. She made that statement quietly and with as little explanation as it was once made by a former president.

But all seven of the others are in the midst of plans for further law-making futures.

True, Representative Ruth Hanna McCormick, republican, Illinois, will not try to succeed herself as a congresswoman-at-large. But that is because she is campaigning for a seat in the senate. A train took her westward from Washington today for another speech-making whirl.

Representative Katherine Langley, republican, Kentucky, who succeeded her husband, and whose further candidacy had been somewhat in doubt, today definitely said she would be a candidate for re-election. Any suggestion that her husband might wish to return to his old seat in congress was thus set at rest.

"I am interested in several pieces of legislation for my Kentucky mountain district that I wish to complete," said Mrs. Langley.

Dark of hair, bright of eye, colorfully clothed, Mrs. Langley was as cheery as the pretty calendar ladies that hang on the walls of mountaineers' homes as the told of her plans for her people—postoffices, a toll bridge at Hazard to be made free by legislation, flood protection for Saleysville on the Licking river, locks and dams on the Big Sandy, creation of a third Kentucky judicial district for greater convenience in court proceedings.

Back from making a keynote speech at a meeting of the democratic state committee in Jacksonville, Representative Ruth Bryan Owen, of Florida, was all enthusiasm for the June primaries. Mrs. Owen's first election, contested on a citizenship basis because of her marriage to a British army officer, is still under consideration by a house elections committee. But she is ready to run again, basing her campaign on bills passed and bills pending.

With a federal banking bill, a disabled soldiers' bill and a bill for books for the blind pending, Ruth Baker Pratt, republican, New York, frankly wants to come back to the house of representatives and finish what she has begun.

Already veterans of three campaigns, Representative Mary Norton, democrat, New Jersey's Representative Edith Nourse Rogers, republican, Massachusetts, and Representative Florence P. Kahn, republican, California, are planning to swing into the fourth with customary zest. Mrs. Rogers, who has much veterans' legislation to sponsor, will avoid wasting time by using an airplane wherever possible in her campaigning. Mrs. Kahn, whose motherly face and manner has done much for winning for her an educational study of Haiti.

The names were: Dr. Moreau Johnson, president of Howard University; Professor Leo M. Favrot, field secretary of the general education board; Professor Benjamin F. Hubert, president of Georgia State Industrial College; Dr. W. T. B. Williams, dean of Tuskegee Institute and field agent of the Jeanes and Slater fund.

Another Death Revives Talk Of Pharaoh Curse

LONDON, Feb. 25.—(AP)—Death of a worker at the British museum during the week-end gave the superstitious another bit of evidence that the pharaohs' curse is still in operation.

Edgar Tun died after an operation for an internal trouble. He had been engaged in lettering exhibits of the various parts of the museum, among them some relics from the tombs of Luxor.

A museum official scouted the suggestion that there was anything sinister in Steele's death. He remarked that thousands of people had been directly connected with the Tut-ankhamen relics and that there was no record of any overwhelming outbreak of mortality.

"I have handled Egyptian relics myself many times for years and I'm still as well as ever," he said.

The pharaohs' curse, legend has it, doomed to a quick death any one molesting tombs of the ancient Egyptian rulers.

Shows thousands way to whiter clothes with less work

EVER had the washday "blues"? Then come to the DeBoth home-making demonstration today.

See washday blues turned to joy! See how clothes are washed snow-white, sweet as clover—without scrubbing or boiling!

Miss DeBoth's staff of experts have shown half a million women how to save time and work on washday—how to save clothes—how to get whiter washes safely. There will be another of these interesting demonstrations today at the time and place shown above. Don't miss it!

The dirt is soaked out
In the DeBoth demonstration the famous granulated soap, Rinso, is used.

See how Rinso whips into rich, creamy suds—how these suds loosen the dirt—how the clothes rinse snowy without a bit of hard work! Results are almost unbelievable!

Try Rinso yourself next washday! It's all you need—no bar soaps, chips or powders. Granulated, compact—one cupful of Rinso gives more suds than two cupfuls of lightweight, puffed-up soaps. Economical!

Rinso is great in washers, too. Endorsed by the makers of 38 leading washing machines—used by more than 32,000 washer demonstrators for best results.

Guaranteed by the makers of LUX—Lever Brothers Co., Cambridge, Mass.

Famous Home-making Expert
Jessie M. DeBoth says:

"We discovered by laboratory tests that Rinso soaks out dirt and spots with very little rubbing. It washes snow-white without boiling. Saves clothes and hands, too."

"As a result, we urge women to trust even their finest cottons and linens to its care. We also advise it for dishes and all household cleaning. Rinso is a great work-saver and its rich suds make it very economical."

"We tested it in washing machines, also—and are not surprised that makers of 38 leading washers recommended Rinso!"

Could Hardly Do Her Work

"When I started taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound I could hardly do my housework. I was so nervous and weak from Change of Life that I had to lie down very often. I heard about the Vegetable Compound in a booklet which was left at my door. I am doing all the housework for a family of four and it keeps me on my feet. I have taken six bottles and I have gained strength and flesh."—Minnie E. Hicks, R. R. #2, Rushville, Indiana.

The year round YOU NEED THIS PERFECT REFRIGERATION

Harmful bacteria know no season. They thrive on warmth. No matter how chilly it may be outdoors, it's usually hot in your kitchen. Keeping foods safely refrigerated is therefore as much a problem in Spring as it is in Mid-Summer.

The General Electric Refrigerator will automatically keep your perishable foods always below 50 degrees—keep them fresh and healthful every day in the year. Whether it be warm or cold, whether you keep kitchen windows open or shut, whether you go away for a week-end, your food will always be in perfect condition when you want it. The General Electric is the only refrigerator with an all-steel cabinet. It is built like a safe. Heat cannot leak in, cold cannot seep out. It is sturdy, dependable . . . and very decorative.

All its mechanism is mounted on top in a dust-proof, hermetically sealed steel casing. Quietly it operates, without ever needing to be oiled. And it never creates any radio interference.

More than 350,000 users today of General Electric Refrigerators and not one has spent a single cent for service or repairs!

AT THE COOKING SCHOOL

Miss Jessie DeBoth has selected a General Electric Refrigerator for use in The Constitution Free Cooking School being conducted at Loew's Grand Theatre this week. Hear her tell of the need for adequate food preservation in the home.

Jonesport, Maine, where dwell the characters familiar to listeners to the Sunday Seth Parker's programs through the N. B. G. networks, is a real town, with a Chamber of Commerce. Phillips H. Lord, creator and proprietor of Seth Parker, has been notified of his election as honorary president of the civic organization.

Rudy Vallee started something when he began featuring the "Maine Stein Song" through the N. B. G. networks in his weekly Fleischmann program. A deluge of songs from colleges all over the United States and Canada has virtually swamped him. Going through the huge stack of musical manuscripts, Vallee estimated that if all were played they would consume his program time for six months.

BY THE DIAL TWISER.
Phil Maher's radio adaptation of N. S. Woods' "The Boy Detective," an American melodrama, throughout which the hero and villain vie for honors and a woman, will form the feature aboard Hank Simmons' Show Boat "Maybelle," when, at 10 o'clock tonight, WGST and the Columbia system rig microphones aboard and broadcast the entire show.

The play is one of those wholesome series of the slums—criminal—and sublime—villainous and righteous righteousness—with the hero to the fore whenever weak and suffering are in danger. This is the play Hank has been keeping in his safe just for this particular date, as he has been promising a real melodrama and here he has it in "The Boy Detective."

Atlanta Fives Begin Play Today in G. I. A. A., Fifth District Meets
LADIES CONTINUES JACK CULLOP PROBEFIFTH DISTRICT,
G. I. A. A. MEETS
OPEN TODAY

Four Atlanta Teams Entered in Two Basketball Tournaments.

By Roy White.

Atlanta's prep basketball teams will resume their tournament play this afternoon, but on foreign courts. Four of the teams will leave the city early this morning for Macon, Ga., where the annual G. I. A. A. will get under way at 2 o'clock and the other four will go to Chamblee, Ga., to participate in the annual fifth district tournament.

Boys' High, winner of the city prep tournament; Tech High, G. M. A. and Fulton High will carry the Atlanta banner into Macon, while Decatur, University School, Marietta and Russell will carry another standard in the fifth district tournament.

In the G. I. A. A. Atlanta has, with one exception, been represented in the finals since the tournament was started in 1922. Tech High lost to Lanier in the initial tournament and beat G. M. A. last year for the championship.

START.

G. M. A. and Gordon Institute will start the G. I. A. A. activities off at 2 o'clock. Boys' High and Madison Aggies will follow at 3 o'clock with Tech High and Norman Junior college, winner of the recent middle Georgia tournament, at 5 o'clock. Fulton will play Lanier High at 8:30 o'clock in the feature game of the first day's play.

In the fifth district meet, Decatur and U. S. B. will play at 8:30 o'clock, with Marietta and Russell High scheduled to end the first day's play at 9:30 o'clock.

With two teams in the upper and two in the lower bracket, of the G. I. A. A., it is impossible for the Atlanta teams to meet each other until the semi-finals, and should they survive the semi-finals it will be an all-Atlanta championship game.

INJURY.

Coach Tolbert's Tech High will be minus the services of Captain Jack English, the scoring ace of the prep tournament last week. He was injured in the Boys' High game but continued to play. An X-ray at the hospital Sunday revealed a badly sprained foot and had not improved sufficiently Tuesday afternoon for him to participate in practice.

Atlanta teams did not fare so well in the drawings of the fifth district tournament. Decatur and U. S. B. will meet each other and Marietta and Russell will play, thus eliminating two of the Atlanta entries on the first night's play.

There should be plenty of action every afternoon and night in the Macon tournament. Only the best prep and high school basketball teams in the state are entered and the winner will have a just claim to the state championship.

FEATURES.

Each and every game on the first day's program is well worth the while and it will be an effort to pick out every feature game, other than the Fulton-Lanier scrap, as Lanier are hosts to the tournament.

Every team is allowed to pick out a coach and the eliminated teams will leave Macon shortly after the games are over.

The complete pairings follow:

Boys' High vs. Madison, 2 o'clock.

Columbus vs. Barnesville, 4 o'clock.

G. M. A. vs. Monroeville, 7 o'clock.

G. M. A. vs. Gordon, 2 o'clock.

Tech High vs. Norman, 5 o'clock.

Benedictine vs. By, 6 o'clock.

Fulton vs. Lanier, 8:30 o'clock.

Savannah vs. Riverside, 9:30 o'clock.

Pairings in the fifth district tournament follow:

Palmetto vs. Conyers, 6:30 o'clock.

Lithonia vs. Avondale, 7:30 o'clock.

Decatur vs. U. S. B., 8:30 o'clock.

Marietta vs. Russell, 9:30 o'clock.

The Macon Junior Chamber of Commerce is sponsoring the G. I. A. A. as it has done in the past and an elaborate entertainment program has been planned for the visiting players.

A trophy will be given to the winner and each member of the winning team will receive suitable prizes.

An executive committee meeting of the G. I. A. A. will be held in Macon during the tournament, and plans for baseball, track, swimming, golf, tennis, wrestling and other sports will be discussed and perfected at the meeting.

It is also possible that some of the football schedules for next fall will be completed during the G. I. A. A. meeting in Macon.

Tournament winners:

1922—Winner, Lanier; loser, Tech High.

1923—Winner, Boys' High; loser, Lanier.

1924—Winner, U. S. B.; loser, Riverside.

1925—Winner, Lanier; loser, U. S. B.

BOSWELL BY Ed Sanford

Events Leading Up to the Tragedy

Police of three counties were searching for Katrina Van Televox and her alleged abductor, Backward Boye, brother of Wayward Boye. Those standing close to the couple declared Backward Boye whistled seven soft, low whistles followed by a single intense, pleading note. No such whistle exists in the code, electrical engineers declared. The meaning of the signal has been baffled.

It was Fried Chicken Night at Wayward Boye's cooking school after the Tuesday night performance of the Junior League Follies at the Erlanger theater.

As the curtain dropped on the last act of the show and the front doors were opened, a vast throng of men each leading a little woman by the hand stormed the doors and rushed headlong into the auditorium. Those who had attended the Follies were prevented from leaving. Which, after all, was a great favor.

Wayward Boye, the internationally famous lumber camp cook and Jew's harp player, shared the platform with Miss Katrina Van Televox, the electrically perfect woman.

"In addition to turning on any desired electrical contrivance in the home by responding to various whistles," explained Wayward, "Miss Televox is the only woman in the world who goes;

1. Aights from a street car with her left hand grasping the hand-rail and her face in the direction the car is going;

2. Takes off her coat on entering a theater and does not wait until three and one-half minutes after she sits down;

3. Never talks longer than three minutes over a telephone;

4. Defests Rudy Vallee;

5. Refuses to play bridge;

6. Always is on time for appointments;

7. Thinks Pekinese dogs are terrible;

8. Likes cartoon comedies;

9. Never drops her gloves.

At the close of the demonstration Miss Televox received twelve proposals of marriage and later was abducted by Backward Boye, cotton planter and champion whistler of Pulaski county. Close friends of Mr. Boye intimated that he had learned Miss Televox could not talk.

HOW TO FRY CHICKEN.

Wayward gave a demonstration of how to fry chicken that knocked them cold.

"Don't buy one of these dinky sparrows they-call broilers," explained Wayward. "Get a chicken that weighs 1 1/2 to 2 pounds. Have the skillet hot enough to melt lard, so it will sizzle when you put the chicken in. Use a heaping tablespoon of lard.

"Unjoint the chicken; that means cut up completely, not split in half. Take the thighs off the drumsticks, the wings off the shoulders and make two pieces of the breast. Roll each piece of chicken in flour to which has been added a little black pepper.

"Do not have one piece on top of another. Fry it COVERED.

"AND SLOWLY. Very slowly.

"To rush it means to have it half done and to carry it too far means it will be dry and hard as a boarding house biscuit.

"Let it fry until a golden brown, then turn each piece over. Coddle it along. Love it. It will be worth while."

Generals Defeat V. P. I. Five, 53-32

LEXINGTON, Va., Feb. 25.—(P)—Led by an avalanche of field goals by Leigh Williams, rangy center, Washington & Lee tonight ended a successful basketball season by defeating V. P. I., 53 to 32, on the home court.

The sensational pivot man for the Generals scored 19 points from eight field goals and three charity tosses.

The Generals unloaded a scoring attack in the first semester which sent V. P. I. to the rest period on the short end of a 27-0 score. During the first period the visitors scored only one field goal.

The Generals have already made one trip to this section and departed on the small end of a 58-12 score, run up by the Georgia Tech men, and the Emory team hopes to send the Blue Devils back again with a defeat. The team has been working out nearly every day at the "Y" and should be in good shape for its next.

Coach Eddie Cameron said he plans to take Croson to Atlanta, however.

TEAMS GET SET
FOR TOURNNEY

Ole Miss Quintet Scheduled To Report Here This Afternoon.

By Herb Clark.

Two days remain for dreaming on the part of the sundry basketballers of the Southern conference who exhibit yearnings for titles, for honors, and for glory.

Two days, and then the dreams go to the mat with reality. The stage is even now being prepared. The scene of the conference tourney, are sounding their rattling prelude to the battle. Table small talk is being devoted to the selection of the eventual winner of the tourney, wearer of the crown for a year and object of all onslaughts for that length of time.

Officials are busy laying the final plans for the holding of the tournament and for the handling of the crowds.

DRIFTERS.

And advance agents of the teams which are to gird themselves for the struggle are drifting into town.

The warriors of the University of Mississippi, chartered by Coach Homer Hazel, are due to set foot on Atlanta's soil this afternoon. Some catty person remarked that the lads from Ole Miss had probably been given a four-day leave of absence and that they knew they would not linger long after the tourney started, wherefore they came early. Which is probably not so. Mister Hazel and his charges took right after the title last year. They grabbed their little hatchets and backed and leaped. The chips fell in a flutter. Mister Hazel and his charges are said to be in a nasty mood at the moment, and may take a notion to do a little more chopping at the favorites this year.

They have just that to play with in their first game. The good old Generals from Washington and Lee, who have fought wisely and well through their regular season, are paired with Ole Miss in the first round. A spell of hacking at the Generals will no doubt dull the Ole Miss hatchet no little.

Among the other early birds on the arrival list are Sewanee, Tennessee, L. S. U. and N. C.

DEFENDERS.

The Wolfpack, defending champions, and Sewanee's Tigers tangle in the first round. And it is just possible that the defending champions will last only long enough to play that first game. The Tigers from the mountains started their season well and have since come up with a rush which defies all was and precedents.

Tennessee, matched with V. M. I. in the opener, is slated to be with the field for a few days. The Vols, boasting an entire body of the German five starters on the court, are highly regarded in the lists on the basis of the inexperience with which they have begun up to the big boys, Kentucky among the number.

L. S. U. would seem to be one of the "unfortunates." They drew Duke's bounding Blue Devils, trouble-makers to any and all, in the first round, and are doomed to be numbered among the early casualties.

The bracket for the tournament and the schedule for Friday's play follows:

UPPER BRACKET.

Alabama vs. Clemson.

University of North Carolina vs. Georgia.

Tennessee vs. V. M. I.

Ole Miss vs. Washington and Lee.

LOWER BRACKET.

Kentucky vs. Maryland.

Sewanee vs. North Carolina State.

Georgia Tech vs. Tulane.

SCHEDULE.

Friday—1 o'clock, Sewanee vs. North Carolina State.

2 o'clock, Ole Miss vs. Washington and Lee.

3 o'clock, Alabama vs. Clemson.

4 o'clock, Tennessee vs. V. M. I.

5 o'clock, Kentucky vs. Maryland.

8 o'clock, University of North Carolina vs. Georgia.

The officials will be: Stanley Sutton, George School, Pennsylvania, who has officiated for 10 years; Bernard Eberts, of Washington, D. C., and George Wood, of Jacksonville, Fla.

Wolfpack Leaves Today for Meet.

RALEIGH, N. C., Feb. 25.—(P)—North Carolina State will leave tomorrow for Atlanta to defend its Southern conference basketball crown without Jimmy Brown, regular forward.

The sophomore was ruled ineligible for competition in the tournament by the faculty today because of scholastic deficiencies. He was kept out of the past two games on the same ground.

Duke Court Ace Sent to Hospital

DURHAM, N. C., Feb. 25.—(P)—Possibility that Joe Croson, star center for the Duke University basketball team, will be unable to play in the Southern conference tournament at Atlanta Friday loomed today when it was learned he is in the University infirmary with an infected mouth.

The six-foot six-inch center was forced to enter the infirmary Sunday and since that time has been unable to take nourishment, according to physicians.

Coach Eddie Cameron said he plans to take Croson to Atlanta, however.

WIN MATCHES
AT AUDITORIUM

Steinborn and Harper Bow in Defeat Before 3,500 Fans.

Some thirty-five hundred screaming, wrestling fans had their hopes dashed last night at the City Auditorium when Charlie Fox, the tough egg, defeated Paul Harper, the Texan. The same number of fans had their hopes realized when Paul Jones subdued Milo Steinborn, the strong man.

The Harper-Fox match finish came somewhat as a surprise. It was something of a blow to Promoter Webster as well as the fans. Harper was a great card. Fox is even more cordially detested than was Dick Daviscourt.

Fox, who slammed a Greek down here in his first match and yelled to the crowd to send him another Greek, announced a day before the match that Paul Harper was just a sheik wrestler, who disliked to have his hair mussed. Harper gave him a great match and lost when Fox pulled one of the oldest tricks of the game.

OLD TRICK.

He grabbed the ropes and Harper, who had a full nelson, yanked him backward. Fox turned loose suddenly and the sudden release sent Harper backward to the mat, with Fox on top. Harper's breath went out with a whistle that could be heard in the ring-side seats, and he was easily pinned. The fall came after 49 minutes and 15 seconds of wrestling.

They came back with a slam-bang lot of fighting and wrestling with Harper fighting wildly for a fall. He had Fox groggy when the bell rang to end the one-hour time limit bout. Fox was booed as he left the ring, but the crowd stood and cheered Harper.

Milo Steinborn, throwing caution to the winds, gave the crowd more action than he has ever given in his match with Jones. The big German, who is the strongest wrestler in the world and who is a famous stunt strong man, took the offensive from the start. He rushed Jones and brought gasps from the crowd by his super-human feats of strength. Twice he lifted Jones high over his head with one hand, tossing him all the way across the ring. He broke crab holds by the simple expedient of straightening his legs.

HOOK SCISSORS.

Jones' "hook scissors" hold that Jones cannot break himself out he gets it properly, pulled Steinborn down after 36 minutes and 10 seconds of wrestling. The second fall came after 10 minutes, another hook scissors bringing it.

The crowd jammed about the ring as soon as Jones got it and began to swing the huge body of the German about the ring. They cheered when the fall came and the referee unwrapped Jones' legs.

Promoter Henry Webster announced that he would stage a world's championship match on March 12 and that there would be no increase in prices. The announcement was greeted with cheers.

Turnesa, Cooper Tie at Orlando

ORLANDO, Fla., Feb. 25.—(P)—Mike Turnesa, Elmford, N. Y., and Lighthorse Harry Cooper, Los Angeles, split a 36-hole day on the first 18 holes play of the $2,000 central Florida open golf tournament here today by compiling 68s for their halfway mark.

Turnesa, who missed his score in early in the day, with two par-breaking 34s, Cooper negotiated the well-trapped Dubsroad Country Club course in a par 35 and a sub par 33.

A blade of grass kept Horton Smith, brilliant young shouter from Detroit, from splitting first day honors. He missed a 35-hole hole in one, to take a 35-34-69. His partner, Al Watrous, of Detroit, scored a 35-34 for a 70.

Final play of the 36-hole tournament will be held over Orlando Country Club course tomorrow.

Athletic Club Wins, 37-22, To Even Count With Jacket Quintet

'BIG CY' BELL LEADS ATTACK ON ENGINEERS

Tech's Lead Overcome Early and Clubmen March on to Victory.

By Herb Clark.

If, as they say, revenge is sweet, the Atlanta Athletic Club basketball team will need no chocolates for some time to come. The Beamen trounced the Yellow Jacket courtmen of Georgia Tech by a margin of 37 points to 22 at the Tech gym Tuesday night.

Tech it was which broke the Club's long winning streak some time ago. But now Coach Bean and his amateurs are back on top of the world.

As a basketball game, the occasion was very, very apathetic. As a battle it was probably more bitter, more entertaining, and more packed with action than last year's "Battle of the Palms."

As a battle, the judges would probably have called it a draw. The Jackets had two men, Moore and Hecke, put out on fouls, but the Beamen started their personnel more equally.

The scoring was done by fits and starts as the battle slowed up at intervals to allow for shots.

Tech led at the end of the first two minutes as Wilson broke the "feeling out" period by sinking a long shot. That was the only time the Jackets led.

"Big Cy" Bell, who led the club attack with 16 points, staged a single-handed rally which ran the count up to 8-2 in favor of the club.

TECH TIES SCORE. Tech, with Wilson, Hecke, and Mathes sharing duty, romped on up the ladder to tie the score at 8-8. And that was the last time the score was tied. Coach Bean's ladders trod on the accelerator to chase the score up in short spurts.

The clubbers led by a 21-14 margin at the half.

Perkins, Wilson and Tate made a body stab at putting the Jackets back in the race as the second half opened, but their efforts fell short, and the club was off again.

LOUISVILLE, Ky., Feb. 25.—(AP)—John H. Waggener, 71, for many years connected with horse racing interests, died at his home here today following an illness of more than a year.

Born in Memphis, Mr. Waggener came to Louisville 45 years ago. For many years he was connected with the accounting department of the Kentucky Jockey Club and worked at several tracks in the south.

He is survived by his widow, two daughters, Mrs. Edward N. Veach, Atlanta, and Mrs. C. E. Bright, Louisville; two sons and two brothers.

Power Company's Five Meets Macon

Meeting an out-of-town team ranked as one of the best in central Georgia, the Georgia Power Company's local quintet, member of the Trammell Scott basketball league, will play the Macon division five of the same company at the Atlanta Athletic Club Wednesday night.

Tied for runner-up position with First National Bank, the local powermen will play their Macon cousins without jeopardizing their standing in the city league.

The game will begin immediately following the windup of scheduled games to be played by girl team in the city league.

flash, was under the weather as the second half started, but Coach Munderford reported that he, as well as Goldin and Wages, would be ready for the tournament. The Jackets start preparing this afternoon for the meet.

From the caliber of their play Tuesday they will need practice.

And as the Jackets await the starting gun, the Beamen entrain this morning for Charlotte, N. C., and their return game with the Monograms which closes their season.

S. I. A. A. MEET STARTS TODAY; MERCER RESTS

Bears and Millsaps Draw Byes; Fourteen Teams Compete for Title.

JACKSON, Miss., Feb. 25.—(AP)—Fourteen teams representing colleges in seven states will open the Southern Intercollegiate Athletic Association basketball tournament here tomorrow.

Only three teams failed to appear tonight for workouts and the trio of missing aggregations are scheduled to arrive tomorrow morning.

Pre-tournament favorites are hard to select but Erskine, of Due West, S. C., and Mercer University, of Macon, Ga., are generally indicated as leaders.

The Erskine Seeders went through the entire season without an association defeat, and the flying feet from the Carolinas hopes to continue its string, now standing at eight straight wins.

BEARS ARE STRONG. The Mercer Bears boast a stellar combination, led by Captain Baggy Mallard, all-S. I. A. A. forward of 1929; Peggy Campbell, all-American high school forward with Vienna, Ga.; a sophomore center "find" in Bugger Underwood, and one of the niftiest guards in the association in Yank Wright.

Kentucky is entering the strongest squad of teams ever to represent the Blue Grassers in a tournament. Four teams with rankings closely bunched are on the list from the northernmost state in the S. I. A. A., including University of Louisville, Kentucky Wesleyan, Eastern Normal and Georgetown.

Louisiana also has four entries, all strong contenders. In Centenary, Southwestern Institute, Louisiana College and Louisiana Tech.

OPENING GAME. The task of trying on the tournament lid falls to Birmingham-Southern and Louisiana College at 3 o'clock Wednesday afternoon.

The southwestern Louisiana Bulldogs ranked among the dark horses, clashes with University of Chattanooga at 4 p. m.

Centenary and the purple clad Kentucky Wesleyan squad close the afternoon show, starting at 5 o'clock. Resuming Wednesday night at 7 o'clock University of Louisville runs into the Louisiana Tech men. Louisville is considered outstanding.

The Erskine squad trots out at 8 o'clock to oppose the Eastern Kentucky Teachers.

Mississippi College's defending champions put the nightcap on the Wednesday program at 9 p. m., by opposing the Georgetown squad from Kentucky, lately winners of the state S. I. A. A. tournament at Winchester, Kentucky.

Millsaps, of Jackson, and Mercer drew byes for the first round.

Bad Luck Trail Has Ill Effect On Al Espinosa

A long succession of bad luck in big events serves to undermine the confidence of a player. Even the very finest and most courageous golfers are not always free from the feeling that luck is against them. It is produced by lack of success, and the nearer the victim gets to victory without actually accomplishing the feat, the greater he is apt to be influenced by his past ill fortune.

Drubbing. MOUNT PLYMOUTH, Fla., Feb. 25.—(AP)—John Gilbert Hall, of New York, 13th ranking singles player in the United States, celebrated his entrance in the central Florida tennis tournament here today by handing a 6-1, 6-1 drubbing to Bob Stevens, of Rollins college, in a first round match.

In the other feature match of the day Dick Covington, of Asheville, N. C., defeated Dr. C. D. Wilder, of Orlando, 6-1, 6-2. Jacob Zorian, of Orlando, 6-0, 6-1, in the remaining first round match of the day.

MERCUR'S STYLE VERY ORIGINAL, SAYS RICHARDS

Bethlehem Star Still Has Several Good Years of Tennis.

By Vincent Richards. International Tennis Star.

(Copyright, 1930, The Constitution and American Newspaper Alliance.) NEW YORK, Feb. 25.—Of all the players on the Davis Cup squad, none has a more individual style than Fritz Mercur, of Bethlehem, Pa. You have only to watch him in action for a few minutes to realize there is a difference between his game and that of the other candidates for the team.

Mercur was born in Williamsport, Pa., but he went to school in Switzerland, and then finished college in New York. He is partly responsible for the difference. His forehead is made with the lower part of the arm; his backhand, which looks awkward, is made with a lot of wrist, like the strokes of the French. In general it may be said he relies less upon force than most of the players in this country.

DECEPTIVE. Mercur is deceptive to watch. Looking at him one is apt to feel his game lacks sting and severity. But the player against him knows that his forehead, a thin shield, comes over the net like a flash, and that all his strokes, while easier to handle when he is reached than the heavier strokes of others, are difficult to get to. This is because Mercur is so shrewd and calculating in placing.

He has a service easier to look at than to return, and his volley, particularly his low backhand cross-court volley, is extremely effective. Overhead, however, he is inclined to be erratic, and this is true in general.

At top form he is a dangerous man for the best, and he has beaten many of them, but he frequently falls far short of his best, and so loses to players he should beat. That is why Mercur has not gone higher in ranking, and why he has failed before to make the Davis Cup team, although he practiced with it at Philadelphia last year.

VETERAN. Mercur is not to be classed with the rising generation of players. He has been in competition for years. But he is only 27, and should have at least four or five years of his best yet. It is only in the last few years that he has played extensively. Before then he played in only three or four tournaments a year. As a player he has been a pioneer, but as much out of him as from many other players of his age.

While Mercur has fine victories to his credit in singles, it is as a doubles player that he has shown to best advantage. He is especially brilliant at the four-handed game, and last year he won the national clay court doubles with Gil Hall.

Although he has never before received serious consideration for the Davis cup team, Mercur is likely to get the chance to prove himself this year, along with all the other young players. It may be his nomination to the squad will inspire him to greater efforts than in the past, when he never gave the impression of taking the game any too seriously.

ABLE. With his talents Mercur has it in him to go a great deal further. All he needs is a little more ambition and activity on the court, for with his stroke equipment and his knowledge of the game he has a better endowment than other players who have gone further.

Anyone who can beat Manuel Alonso and make the showing against Cochet that Mercur did in the 1928 championship, in which he took the first set from the Frenchman and carried him to 11-9 in the second, is a good player.

Last year Mercur defeated Wilmer Allison after Allison had put out Lott, and Frank Hunter had his hands full to beat Mercur in the semi-finals. Mercur may be the dark horse of 1930. He will bear watching in the

300 Club Plans First Tournament

The Brunswick 300 Club, which was organized three years ago, will hold its first 300 Club tournament at Cleveland in conjunction with the American bowling congress tournament from March 1 to April 6. W. V. Thompson, one of the organizers of the A. B. C. and veteran bowling authority, organized the 300 Club. He announced that to date 461 had qualified as members.

The A. B. C. tournament will be rolled in the Clevelander while the 300 Club championship will be bowled on the alleys of the Euclid Thirteenth street recreation. Many of the bowlers in the 300 Club tourney also will see action in the A. B. C.

Illinois leads in entries by states with a total of 76. Pennsylvania is second with 47, Ohio third with 43, New York fourth with 39, Missouri fifth with 30 and California sixth with 27. Wisconsin has 19, Iowa 10 and Minnesota, Indiana and Michigan 7 each.

"This is a remarkable showing," said Thompson, "when it is considered that in the 29 A. B. C. tournaments 172,222 games were rolled and only two 300 scores were made. We had hundreds of applications for membership in the Brunswick 300 Club and the records of the 461 which were accepted were carefully examined."

"We hope to make the 300 Club tournament as famous as the A. B. C. It surely is a distinctive championship."

Tunney, in Florida Bars Sport Scribes

MIAMI BEACH, Fla., Feb. 25.—(AP)—So far as could be discovered, all attempts by gentlemen of the press to "crash" the portals of Gene Tunney's hotel suite failed today. There was some intimation that the former champion would grant an "audience" to newspapermen tomorrow or at least issue a statement helping to baillyhoo the Scott-Sharkey fight, which he plans to witness.

At Tunney's hotel this afternoon the Associated Press representative was given his room number and directed to a telephone.

A long wait after giving the number, then the operator's voice: "Who is this, please?"

Katz, English Get Forward Positions, Hackney at Center, Stayton, Hardy at Guards.

PLAYER.	SCHOOL.	POSITION.
Morris Katz	Boys' High	Forward
Jack English	Tech High	Forward
Norman Hackney	G. M. A.	Center
William Stayton	Boys' High	Guard
William Hardy	Tech High	Guard

By Roy White.

Selection of an all-prep basketball team this year in some respects is much harder than those of previous years. There seem to be only two outstanding players and they are named without hesitation. The other three places have been selected after careful watching of particular players in the tournament, which ended Saturday night.

Captain Bill Stayton, of Boys' High, and Captain Jack English, of Tech High, were the outstanding players. Stayton held English to 12 points in the final game and nine of those were scored in the first 10 minutes of play.

In addition the Boys' High guard scored a total of 24 points in three tournament games, for third place. He was without question the best guard in the league throughout the season and was a cool, clever player at all times.

Jack English played in 10 minutes of the first game, 30 minutes of the second game and practically all of the championship game and was high scorer with 35 points, 8 points ahead of Katz, his nearest competitor. English is the best basketball prospect that the prep league has seen in many years and he never seems to get excited and lose his temper or fail to keep going at top speed.

Morris Katz, the Boys' High forward, proved to be one of the league's best. With English as a running mate, that pair would be hard to beat. He is a more experienced player than English and can shoot from either side with a long, overhanded flip. He is an excellent floater, a man and an accurate passer. His three long field goals Saturday night proved of material aid in Boys' High's 7-point victory over Tech High. Katz was second in the tournament scoring with 27 points.

EFFECTIVE. Norman Hackney the G. M. A. ace, is given the center position. His work in the Boys' High game Saturday afternoon stamped him as a real center. He secured the tip-off practically every time and it was to that advantage that G. M. A. was able to hold the Hurricane to a 28-to-27 score. He literally was in every play and the main spring of the G. M. A. team all season.

He scored only 12 points in the two games and was topped by both Gatin, the Boys' High center, and Callis, the Tech High pivot man, but guarded them on both defense and offense in the two games. His scoring record beat the others in the first two games.

The other guard position is given to Bill Hardy, the Tech High flash. He appeared cool in every game, particularly Boys' High game. He guarded Katz and made the Boys' High ace shoot from long range practically all the game. Three field goals were scored from out of his reach and Katz's other two came from under the baskets when Hardy was at the center of the court.

QUICK. He was quick as a flash to get the ball off the backboard and pass it back up the court. His is a bit small but makes up for that in speed and accurate passwork.

Jerry Gant, the G. M. A. forward; Maynard and Anderson, of Decatur; Chambers, of Tech High, and Van Houten, of Marietta, deserve honorable mention for their play during the season.

Both Callis, of Tech High, and Gatin, of Boys' High, played good ball all season and also in the tournament. Gatin's good play has been in following the ball under the baskets. A majority of his points have been scored by volleying the ball from the backboard. Callis was good at passing and was the key man in the Tech High system. Johnston, of Decatur, also deserves much praise for his work all season.

Stanie, of Boys' High; Boyd, of Tech High; S. Flynt, of Decatur; Holt, of Marietta; "Shorty" Roberts, of Fulton, and Clark, of G. M. A., deserve honorable mention for their guarding during the season and in the tournament.

Ep Suddeth, of G. M. A., was one of the season's outstanding guards but was ineligible in the tournament because of the age limit. S. Flynt, of Decatur, played a great game against Tech High in the semi-finals. Roberts, of Fulton, also was good in the only game he team played in the tournament but his size kept him from all prep consideration. Clark and Boyd guarded good in the semi-finals game but hardly measured up to the standard of Hardy and Stayton.

BULLDOGS END GRID PRACTICE ON THURSDAY

Team Holds Long Scrimmage; Regulars See Action.

ATLANTA, Ga., Feb. 25.—Thursday may be the last day of spring practice for the regulars on the Georgia football squad, Head Coach Harry McHre intimated this afternoon at the close of a particularly long scrimmage.

Tomorrow only a light workout will be held, but a heavy scrimmage is slated for Thursday. If the regulars are allowed to turn in their uniforms Thursday, the freshmen will be given a three-day layoff. The frosh have three more weeks of work before they close their spring training.

The squad had its first real dose of spring weather this afternoon, but got in a good workout. Coach McHre had in three regular backfield men—Downes, Dickens and Roberts—play in offense, and had Keyes, diminutive halfback, working with them. Supporting the backs was a line composed of McWhorter, center; Maddox and Patterson, guards; Leathers and Thornton, tackles, and Timmons and Keith, ends. Leathers worked at right tackle this afternoon, as the Georgia mentor had no available tackle to play that side of the line.

Downes, Dickens and Roberts were given only a few minutes of scrimmaging, and were relieved by Sullivan, Gaston and Ebershardt.

The defensive team was made up of the following: Collins, center; Thorne and Mountford, guards; Rose and Winna, tackles; Maxwell and Hill, ends; Brown, quarterback; Mott and Young, halves, and Stoinoff, fullback. Buster Mott was in his first scrimmage since injuring his ankle in the first scrimmage of spring training, several weeks ago.

BY JOHN P. BOUGHAN.

Associated Press Financial Editor.

CHICAGO, Feb. 25.—(AP)—Sensational setbacks in grain prices but with an astonishing subsequent recovery followed activity in the farm board allies today in letting non-members ship for themselves. The sudden rally went hand in hand with widely circulated reports that the newly organized National Wheat Stabilization Corporation had branched out into mammoth dealings in wheat future delivery rights just before the market closed. Hereafter, farm board allies have accepted immediate deliveries of country grain offerings from all growers, whether members of co-operative organizations or not, and have refrained from any moves in regard to future delivery transactions.

Before today's action, wheat prices had been relatively stable, with a slight upward trend. The market was characterized by a general sense of optimism, with prices for various grades of wheat showing a steady increase. The National Wheat Stabilization Corporation's move into the market was seen as a significant development, potentially leading to a more stable and higher price for wheat in the future.

Violent swings in wheat prices and a huge volume of wheat trading that developed during the last half of the day contrasted with earlier relative calm. The price of wheat rose from 1.04 to 1.05, a gain of one cent. The market was characterized by a general sense of optimism, with prices for various grades of wheat showing a steady increase.

It was at this juncture that news of the unannounced change in buying plans of the federal farm board's co-operative grain organizations relative to immediate delivery of wheat to the market had a significant effect. The market was characterized by a general sense of optimism, with prices for various grades of wheat showing a steady increase.

DAY IN FINANCE

By
R. L. BARNUM

NEW YORK, Feb. 25.—Commodity markets, especially wheat, continue to dominate the stock market. Wheat and cotton were a shade better in the early trading with stocks up. In the second hour wheat took another nose dive, March dropping below $1.10 with cotton soft but less so than wheat. Selling of stocks was resumed with many leading shares making new lows for this movement. The volume was not large.

Ordinarily floor members of the New York Stock Exchange ignore the commodity markets. Now, however, with the sustained decline in commodity prices floor members of the stock exchange frequently telephone to their office for information on wheat and cotton prices.

Members of the federal farm board, holding a conference at Washington today, were plainly disturbed over the wheat situation. When asked for news on wheat Chairman Legge replied, "Not so good," but added that he was "hopeful" that the wheat surplus problem would be solved before winter wheat began to move to market in June. "When buyers have been fighting for lower prices," he said, "and now that they have got them let's hope they take a lot of it. He says the recently formed stabilization corporation is paying higher than the market price for wheat."

Inasmuch as there is a large carry over of wheat in the hands of speculator Wall Street believes that the decline in price may go further. No one here is trying to predict when the bottom will be reached; however, the feeling is growing that with prices at the existing low level the time can not be far off when there will be good buying.

Talk is heard here of a further drop in the bank of England rediscunt rate in the near future. Similar reports are being cabled from London. Governor Harrison of the New York Federal Reserve Bank is now on his way to London to attend a conference of the heads of central banks. The feeling here is that these bankers are anxious to see money easier to check the world-wide decline in commodity prices.

Call money renewed at 4-1/2 per cent, against the recent 4 on an approaching heavy month-end dividend and interest requirements. Time money was easier. Thirty-day money was quoted at 4-1/2 to 4-1/2, against the recent 4-1/2 to 4-1/2, longer periods were 4-3/4 to 4-3/4. Longer periods were 4-3/4 to 4-3/4.

The weekly statement of member banks throughout the country belonging to the federal reserve shows an increase of $88,000,000 in investments, including $64,000,000 government bonds. Other investments were down $8,000,000. Loans on securities were down $15,000,000, and commercial loans were smaller by $21,000,000. Evidently the banks are expecting easier money with a better demand for United States government securities. Further evidence of a recovery in the earnings of New England railroads is found in today's action of the Boston & Maine directors in declaring a quarterly dividend of $1, placing the stock on a $4 annual basis. This was the first dividend since 1915, when the New Haven merger blew up. Maine Central reports $13.20 a share for its common stock for 1929 against $8.51 for 1928. There is talk of an increase of from $4 to $5 in the Maine Central dividend when the directors hold their next dividend meeting. New Haven is gradually getting back to its old dividend basis.

Building contracts let in greater New York during the week ending February 21 amounted to $8,708,000, a decrease of 19 per cent the previous week. For the year to date the figures are $101,039,000, down 27 per cent compared with the corresponding period of last year. Contemplated building for the past week aggregated $32,511,000, against $34,684,000 for the previous week.

Union Pacific reports January gross earnings of $14,316,000 against $15,822,000 a year ago. Net was $1,929,000 against $2,389,000. The decline in the buying power of the public hurt in the October and November stock market panic, shares of merchandising companies naturally suffered. Another natural aftermath of the stock market panic which was caused by slowing down in general trade was declining commodity prices, including farm products. Declining prices for farm products have been reflected most stock-marketwise in the shares of merchandising companies, especially the mail order stores. Having emerged in recent years in extension expansion programs including the opening of retail stores throughout the country the mail order houses were not in the best of the stock market in general trade, the effects of the decline in commodity prices. In such times as these, however, a corporation corrects its mistakes and gets ready for building higher on a better foundation. According to Wall Street gossip some changes will take place in the near future in the management of Montgomery Ward.

An advertising campaign involving $10,000,000 for the year will be started by Gillette Razor next week. More money will be spent in this campaign in March and April than in other months. Newspapers and magazines in 187 cities will be used. Recently the earnings of Gillette had dropped because of the change in model with the stock down to 87-1/4 against the year's high of 108-1/8 and the 1929 high of 137. Larger earnings are expected from the new razor. Sponsors for the stock are believed to have acquired considerable stock in this year's drop below 100 in anticipation of the coming nationwide advertising campaign.

It is understood that several theater properties have been acquired by Paramount-Famous-Lasky during the past few months through exchange of stock with a guarantee that 80 will be reached by June of this year. The amount so involved is comparatively small but the guarantee throws an interesting sidelight on the confidence of the management in the future.

Huge Crowds Attend Constitution's Cooking School

A section of Loew's Grand theater Tuesday during the first session of The Constitution's cooking school, showing how the place was crowded. Not a seat was empty when the demonstration began and hundreds were turned away because of lack of room. It was impossible to show the entire theater in the picture. Only the center tier of seats and part of one side on the main floor are visible. The galleries are shown by means of a composite photograph. Conservative estimates of those admitted placed the number at between 2,500 and 3,000.

The Treasure House of Martin Hews

by E. Phillips Oppenheim

21TH INSTALLMENT.

"There was another man here last night who sat at this desk and who dealt with Major Owston. Who was he?"

"The man was shaking in every limb."

"You don't know his name?"

"No, sir. When he comes I am sent away to a little office behind."

"How often does he come?"

"About once every ten days, sir."

"Was it he who took the young lady who was with Major Owston away from here last night?"

"I don't know," was the reply.

"They don't trust me here. Whatever goes on here, sir, I'm not in it—I swear I'm not."

"I don't want to be hard on you, Rees," Bloor said. "Honestly, I'm inclined to believe you, but this man who comes every ten days—you could describe him, perhaps."

"Very well then," Bloor said. "Don't fluster yourself. So long as your sympathies are in the right quarter we don't want to trouble you. This little visit may turn out to your advantage. Now tell me why you find it difficult to describe this person."

"The change in Rees was amazing. A few minutes ago he had seemed on the point of hysteria. Now he was calm. The detective's diplomacy had done its work."

"Mr. Bloor," he said, "I'll tell you the truth. That gentleman comes here about once in ten days, but unless you hear him speak, as I have done, unless you see him in here with Mr. Leopold or in the retiring room behind—next door on the left, sir—I swear that you wouldn't recognize him from one time to another. He comes here in disguise, sir."

"Wait one moment," Bloor enjoined. "You spoke of a retiring room. What does he use that for?"

"Supper parties with ladies, sir, generally," was the reply. "It has a private exit."

"Did he take supper there last night?"

"He may have, sir. I was sent off immediately Major Owston arrived."

"Very well. Now you think he comes here in disguise, yet you always recognize him?"

"I've recognized him once or twice, sir," the secretary admitted, "but it's my belief that he's been here dozens of times when I haven't. He's not so careful about me, because he knows that I'm on the brink of trouble all the time. He knows you people still have one up against him."

"You may count that written off, Rees," Bloor promised him. "You are behaving like a white man tonight. Can you tell us anything about the disappearance of Miss Essiter last night?"

"Not a thing. They sent me all the way to the Milan, and I didn't get back till it was over."

"You saw the man we are inquiring about last night?"

"I saw him come in."

"Describe him as he seemed to you then."

"Well, he was a little above medium height—slim, just the sort of figure the young gentlemen try to give themselves nowadays."

"Would you know him again, if you saw him?"

"If I saw him again in the same makeup, I would, sir."

"What name does he go by here?"

"Rather a ridiculous one, sir—Polly Harten. If word comes in that Polly Harten is going to be in the club any particular night, everything is a little altered. We have extra men on duty. We send away some of the waiters. Supper is laid in the retiring room."

"I see," Mr. Bloor murmured. "Does he ever come two nights following?"

"I have known him to do it."

"You haven't had any word of his coming tonight?"

"None at all."

Bloor was silent for several moments.

"Rees," he said, "this mysterious patron of the place is wanted so badly that we will pay a reward of five hundred pounds—I think it might even be made more. Can you help?"

Once more the man was back in a state of abject terror.

"Inspector," he begged, "don't ask me any more about him. There was the head waiter here before Guido. He got talking to a private detective employed by some gentleman down in the country. He came to me saying he was going to make five hundred pounds with just the wave of his arm. The next day they found him dead. The questions you ask me I have to answer, but I can't do more, sir."

There was the sound of footsteps outside. The door was thrown open. Mr. Leopold stood upon the threshold.

"Hullo, Owston!" he stammered.

"How did you get here?"

"I brought it on," Bloor acknowledged, rising. "Do you happen to be a member of the committee, sir?"

"I am."

Bloor continued, in a conciliatory tone: "I wanted to ask you a question about the young lady you were kind enough to see into a taxi last night. Her friends have communicated with Scotland Yard. She has not returned yet to Claridge's hotel, where she was staying, and the last place she was seen was here."

"But who are you?"

"Detective Inspector Bloor, of Scotland Yard."

Mr. Leopold turned angrily toward him.

"I thought it was understood," he said, "that such inquiries as were made should be made through me as representing the club."

"Major Owston is blameless," Bloor put in quickly. "I called for him in accordance with instructions received tonight, and asked him to accompany me here."

"Then I should like to know who is behind all this disturbance," Mr. Leopold protested. "There are a dozen people who will tell you that Miss Essiter left here alone in a taxi cab within a few minutes of Major Owston's removal. That ends our connection with the matter. I resent this visit of the police."

"Surely you cannot object to the young lady's people placing the matter of her disappearance in our hands," said Bloor.

"The young lady's people?" Mr. Leopold repeated. "Do I take it that you are acting for Mr. Martin Hews?"

"Don't know the gentleman, sir. We are instructed by Claridge's Hotel."

"I have a guest outside," he continued. "I will take her to the restaurant and join you again."

He disappeared, and Bloor turned to Rees.

"Give me your keys," he ordered. "The man handed them to him."

"Now hurry off. Get into my taxi, drive to Scotland Yard, and wait there for me. I'll send you home afterwards. If anyone stops you outside, say 'Apple.'"

"Step outside quickly," he ordered. "Call over the newsboy. Tell him to pass word to the others that on no account is anyone to leave the place."

I hurried out and executed my errand. I had barely made my report when Mr. Leopold reappeared. A moment later the telephone rang. Leopold sprang towards it. Bloor brushed him aside and took off the receiver himself.

"The Blue Skies," he said. "Who is speaking?"

I gasped in surprise. Bloor's imitation of the secretary's voice was wonderful. Nevertheless, there was a pause.

"Perfectly all right," Bloor said presently. "When?"

"Bloor hung up the receiver and looked speculatively at Mr. Leopold. "I wonder," he murmured, "whether there is such a person as Polly Harten."

Leopold moistened his lips.

"You will find her name on the books of the club," he answered.

"Then, if she is a member, why does someone ask in a man's voice if it will be all right for her to come here tonight? I should like to see Polly Harten."

"I don't think you would," he declared.

Suddenly the telephone bell sounded again.

"Ah!" Bloor murmured. "Someone else ringing up! Don't go, Mr. Leopold. Major Owston, will you listen in on that extension in the hall?"

"The Blue Skies," asked a polite voice.

"Is that Detective Inspector Bloor speaking?"

The voice, slow, distinct, with its gibbing undertone of mockery, went on:

"Dear shock-headed friend, you're a little better than Martin Hews people, for instance. They seem to spend their time, I am told, haunting the pubs down Bernersway and Shore-ditch way. Owston, I dare say, is with you. I shouldn't be at all surprised if he is shadowing the place where he lost his lady love. No denial, I notice. Tell me about your health, Bloor. I saw you the other night with the gallant Major, and I thought you looked a little peaked and worried. You shouldn't worry so much, Bloor. The Chief gets difficult sometimes, but I shall drop in and see him one day, and I'll give you a leg up, if I can, Inspector."

Not in the humor for conversation, eh?

"I like to listen," Bloor confided.

"Your voice is a little unusual, you know. I am trying to listen so well that I shall never forget it."

"I have a nice voice," our sardonic enemy went on. "Clear—it has even been called musical—but just a trifle inclined toward ribaldry. All my friends, you know, consider me too frivolous for the highest type of criminal. You know I'm Joseph, of course? It is Joseph speaking."

"How are you, Joseph?" Bloor rejoined. "I'd like to see you down here. Are you bringing Polly along this evening?"

"Not tonight," was the regretful reply. "I meant to, you know, although how the mischief you know it is I can't imagine. Never mind. I shall be at the Blue Skies one evening before very long. Inspector, and I shall dance there and drink a bottle of that Cliquot 15, and I shall walk out just as happily as I entered—only, Inspector, I shall choose my night. See? By-the-by, if Major Owston is there, would he like to have a message from a young lady?"

Steers Cause Consternation Slaughterhouse Cowboy Abandons Lasso, Makes Tackle Gambling on Gotham Street

By H. ALLEN SMITH,
United Press Staff Correspondent.

NEW YORK, Feb. 25.—The steers bulldozing record of Eleventh avenue was lowered by several seconds today by Jake Drago, a slaughterhouse cowboy from Jersey City. Soon after the good cattle barge Kentucky docked at the foot of Thirty-eighth street, five brown steers ambled off the boat. They were supposed to proceed up a runway to an abattoir, to be converted into prime ribs of beef and shoe leather, but somebody left the gate open and in an instant they were gambling through the local equivalent of sagebrush.

Cowboy Drago, employed for just such emergencies as this, was ready with a rope, ran back to the barge and got three lariats. One he threw on the ground. Another he handed to a gawking bystander who was spats.

The startled citizen coiled his rope and with a dexterity born of long contact with the movies, he flung the

Lindy Delays Glider Flight Pending Winds

SAN DIEGO, Cal., Feb. 25.—(AP)—Finding air currents unsuitable for sustained glider flights, Colonel Charles A. Lindbergh today awaited "real winds" before continuing with his sail plane experiments at Point Loma, near here. The flying colonel made one brief flight yesterday, but returned to Los Angeles last night to wait for more favorable weather.

The flight marked the christening of "The Anne Lindbergh," a newly built Bessie Coleman biplane, named in honor of Mrs. Lindbergh. The colonel took off from Mount Soledad, between San Diego and La Jolla, in the previously untried glider, and after 25 minutes kept it aloft in varying winds. He landed on a sandy beach approximately 15 miles from his starting point.

During the flight Lindbergh successfully piloted the tiny plane along the rugged shore line, and expertly skirted several high bluffs and peaks along the route. He expressed considerable elation over the length of his glide, which was the longest he has made since taking up his motorless plane experiments.

Before leaving for Los Angeles Lindbergh asked Hawley Bowles, glider builder, to keep him advised on weather conditions and to inform him when winds were strong enough to resume the flights.

Bowles, who had to descend early yesterday after setting two American records for motorless flights in duration and altitude, said he was determined to make another attempt in a few days, if weather conditions are favorable.

Embezzler Attempts To Take Own Life

NEWARK, N. J., Feb. 25.—(AP)—Arraigned in police court on a charge of attempting suicide, William Phillips was revealed today as an alleged embezzler of $15,000 from the Georgia Casualty Insurance Company.

Police said he attempted suicide with gas because of his arrest last week in Greensboro, N. C., on the charge of embezzlement. Released there under bail, Phillips came here to confer with officials of the company, whose offices were recently moved to Newark.

Saturday night after the conference authorities said Phillips made the attempt upon his life. He was held in jail at $500 at today's hearing.

Pittsburgh Storm Does Huge Damage

PITTSBURGH, Feb. 25.—(AP)—One man was killed and property damage estimated at $1,000,000 was wrought by a severe storm which swept the Pittsburgh area late last night and early today. 172 inches of rain had fallen in the city and high winds were flooding. Automobiles marooned and hundreds of cellars filled with water.

THE SON OF ARZAN No. 8

CAFE DE LA DAIX

Merion listed to the fiery young Arab in bewilderment. He had been told in low, persuasive tones. He was who had stolen from her the little packet she had found in the Swede's camp. Abdul Kamak was no fool. At once he had noted the likeness of his captive that day, to the child in the faded photograph. But why was the Sheikh's daughter clothed in the garments of the unbeliever? Then he had read the yellowed newspaper clippings.

With some difficulty he translated the story printed in French. Abdul Kamak had been to Paris. With one of his desert fellows he had gone there and he had improved his time learning the customs and some of the language of his conquerors. As he came to understand the clippings' content his eyes went wide. Then in his mind, he formed a plan cunningly calculated to enrich himself. Now he was attempting to carry it out.

With fervent passion he poured forth in Arabic his account of the deed. From the moment his eyes had held you they told me my heart must ever be your servant. I ask that you trust me. Come with me and we will go where my father is a sheik mightier than yours. I love you—let me take you away from him. I will take you whether you will or no for I too, hate the Sheikh—"You hate the Sheikh?" came a grim voice from behind them.

Both turned to see the Sheikh standing near. "Yes," he shouted Abdul Kamak. "I hate you!" As he spoke he sprang forward, felled the chief with a blow and dashed across the village where his horse stood saddled. Leaping to it, he made for the gates. The Sheikh, merely stunned, staggered up, shouting to his followers to stop the escaping Arab. But with a wild whoop and with reins flying loose, the son of the desert spurred on past the gates.
